THEME

The city of Durham symbolizes the meaning of progress in North Carolina. Growing from a tiny hamlet in 1865 to a small manufacturing town several years later, then in 1900, a little city whose very rapid growth has now reached the mark of 70,000 in population, it is easy to observe that ours is indeed a city of the New South, continuously outgrowing itself.

This growth has resulted from hard work, for Durham people have always been working people.

HER RECOGNITION as a prosperous city has come through the turning wheels of industry, the hum of which resounds over the world by means of such trademarks as "Renowned the world 'round," "Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco," and through the great educational centers located in this vicinity.

It, therefore, seems only fitting that this graduating class of Durham High School should recognize in the yearbook of 1938 the progressive spirit which characterizes our "Friendly City of Industry and Education."

FOREWORD

In this edition of the Messenger, the staff has made an attempt to present in photographic sketches the city of Durham as it appears today, as well as the usual picture of Durham High School life with its manifold activities. Since the school is, within itself, a real community, it has not been difficult to compare our high school administration, activities, and social life with those institutions of which we, as citizens, will in a few years be a vital part.

Realizing that the true value of a town can be estimated only by the worth of its inhabitants, we have attempted to depict characteristic citizens as well as to show scenic Durham. We can think of no better way than to introduce into our yearbook the civic organizations which have played so essential a role in the development of every phase of city life.

The interest and cooperation of these various groups and their spontaneous enthusiasm in regard to our annual have made us definitely conscious of those fine qualities of citizenship which we, ourselves, hope some day to possess.

DURHAM SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

OFFICE SCENE

BOOK I ADMINISTRATION

MAYOR W. F. CARR

"The Messenger," Durham High School, Durham, North Carolina.

Gentlemen:

FOR A PERIOD of seventeen years the city has operated under the managerial form of government. During this time we have had three city managers, first, Mr. R. H. Rigsbee; second, Mr. R. W. Flack; and the present manager, Mr. H. A. Yancey.

Under the city manager system the government is divided into two branches:

First, the Council, which is made up of twelve Councilmen and the Mayor. It is the duty of this Council to determine the policies of the city and is known as the executive branch of city government.

Second is the administrative branch which is composed of the City Manager and his staff.

We think the city manager form of government is an efficient, business-like government and a great amount of good has come to our city by reason of this form of government.

Yours very truly,

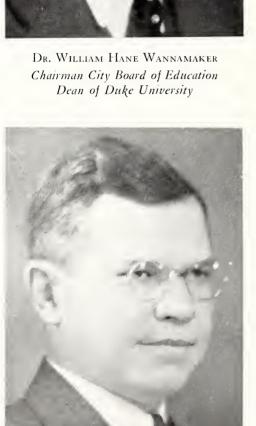

W. F. CARR, Mayor.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION, composed of civicminded citizens who are interested in public education, certainly deserves a place among those who have made Durham the city it is today.

It is difficult for an ordinary citizen, and even one connected closely with the city school system, to realize the wide range covered by the duties of this body. There falls to this group the task of determining almost everything relative to public education in Durham. The Board employs teachers and other school workers, decides upon the length of the school term and holidays, and recommends

CITY BOARD

Mr. Kerney Clifton Stone Secretary-Treasurer of Louise Knitting Mills

to the City Council and County Commissioners necessary expenditures.

Every two years the city council elects two Durham citizens to serve a six-year term on this policyforming body of the city school system. In the event of any member's resignation, the board itself appoints some one to fill the unexpired term.

These people have clearly shown a great interest in every phase of educational development for the good of Durham's future citizens. Their tireless efforts have enabled Durham High School to rank among the leading schools in the nation in scholarship, athletics, and arts.

MR. W. F. WARREN
Superintendent Durham City Schools

Superintendent W. F. Warren, executive head of the Durham City Schools, is no stranger to Durham High School. Seven years prior to his becoming Superintendent of city schools in 1933, he was principal of our high school.

In a series of intimate, informative talks with the student groups this year he stressed the theme of Education for Life. The superintendent always speaks and acts with one motive in mind—the welfare of the children and teachers of Durham. His talks have made us think; and we realize that there are some phases of education even more essential to the making of good citizens than mere "book-learning." Previous themes that he has emphasized are: Character Education and Citizenship, Emphasizing the Beautiful and Cultural in Life, and Safety of Human Life.

Mr. Warren received his A.B. degree from Elon College, his M.A. degree from the University of North Carolina, and he took further graduate work at Duke and Columbia Universities.

His understanding attitude toward the problems of modern youth and his interest in school activities plus his genial disposition have made Mr. Warren a friend to every student.

MR. E. N. JONES

Business Manager Durham City Schools

To Mr. Jones falls the responsibility of seeing that the financial set-up of the city school system operates with the least possible difficulty inside its budget.

This means that he must help in every way with the business management of the city schools. It is he who, working in the closest coöperation with the superintendent and the Board of Education, must help regulate requisitions, arrange for payment of bills, and assist in budget compilations. It is his duty also to see that the school property is adequately maintained and protected. In this latter duty, Mr. Jones must also attend to the insurance and inspection of all school properties.

Though his job is one that requires the greatest accuracy and precision, Mr. Jones has proved himself to be a capable manager of the city school finances.

First row: Mrs. Robinson, Mr. Keller, Mr. Andrews. Second row: Miss Webb, Mrs. Petty.

CITY SCHOOL STAFF

In every organization there are some members whose work, though indispensable, is always carried on behind the scene. Few pupils of Durham High School are acquainted with all of the city school staff and the importance of their positions.

Of course Mrs. Robinson's friendly smile recalls to many of us pleasant memories of elementary school days and valuable lessons learned under her supervision. Her work involves such duties as correlating and coordinating work in the elementary grades, conducting regular grade teachers' meetings, and giving demonstration lessons.

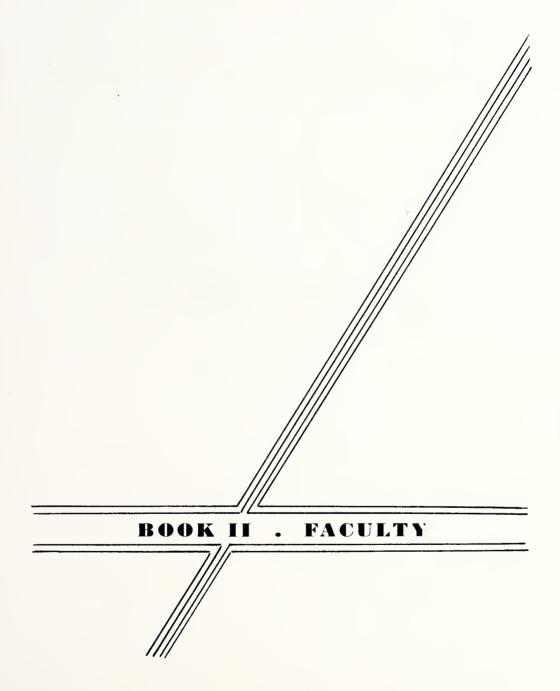

Next in years of service comes Mrs. Petty, a D. H. S. alumna. Her work as bookkeeping clerk is that of keeping accurately and neatly all the books, making up payrolls, making out all requisitions and budget requests for the state department, compiling monthly financial statements of general school and book rental funds.

Miss Frances Webb, another alumna of this school, is the personnel clerk. She serves as general secretary in the administration office, takes care of practically all correspondence and personnel files, and performs many other duties.

Mr. J. B. Andrews is the Book and Supply Manager. Receiving and distributing books and supplies to the various schools, looking after the repairing of books, and serving as general utility manager under the direction of the superintendent and business manager are his duties.

If "Johnny has been playing truant," Mr. Albert Keller, the director of attendance and of adult education, must know the reason why. He compiles annually a census of children of school age, and makes a study of underprivileged children of the city.

COL. MARION FOWLER

"The Messenger," Durham High School, Durham, North Carolina.

Gentlemen:

A VOLUME could be written on the accomplishments of the Chamber of Commerce since its organization in the Fall of 1912 and another on hopes and plans for the future.

In brief I can only touch upon a few of those things with which you come in contact almost daily: the City-Manager form of government in Durham; annexation which brought several more thousands within the city limits; the City Tree Commission to protect shade trees and to work for a city beautiful; the organization and set up of the Community Fund as a going concern, consolidating seven campaigns for funds in one, thus saving both time and money; a direct road to Rocky Mount saving distance to eastern Carolina points; a third set of buyers on the Durham Market, resulting in an increase of 14 million pounds of tobacco sold here; the armory-auditorium, giving Durham a much needed meeting place and adequate housing for our National Guard Company; the downtown activity of Duke's Homecoming, now an annual event; and always fostering an interest in improved educational and recreational facilities.

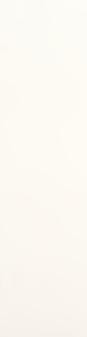

For the future, the Chamber of Commerce will continue its program to foster the trade and the welfare of Durham with a varied list of objectives, one of which is the maintenance of adequate city school facilities.

Sincerely yours,

M. B. Fowler, President, Chamber of Commerce.

MR. QUINTON HOLTON

High School Principal

THERE is one person in Durham High School known to every student from his first day in school. That man is Mr. Quinton Holton, our principal.

A fact amazing to new students is that the principal can usually call them by name and can tell something about them. His interest in each student's welfare has made him a friend and foster-father of each of us.

Before he became our principal in 1933, he was a teacher of history in this school and also dean of boys. An ardent Latin and History scholar, he has been a credit to the institutions where he received his training. He received his A.B. degree from Duke University. For further training, he studied at the University of N. C. Medical School and at the University of Chicago Graduate School in History.

Mr. Holton is also an accomplished musician; he plays both the piano and pipe organ. Strong in his adherence to principles of rectitude and firm in his belief in the reward of honest work, he scorns indolence in every form. If you are right, all's right with our principal.

WALK INTO the main lobby of the office and at a glance make a survey of the scene. Behold! on the left Scylla (Principal's office) and on the right Charybdis (Deans' office). Like Ulysses of old you are destined to become acquainted with both. On this visit meet the deans. Whether your interview is pleasant or painful depends entirely upon the purpose of the visit. On the whole, Mr. Freeman and Mrs. Richardson are pleasant, sympathetic advisers, yet positive and matter-of-fact in their dealings with erring students.

Mrs. Richardson and Mr. Freeman act as our counsellors, having charge of disciplinary methods and deciding upon the validity of absences and tardies. In their office may be found a large set of files which contain detailed records of each pupil that has attended Durham High in the past five years. There are two sets of these records, one permanent and one temporary. On each individual's card may be found the following items: attendance, absences, tardies, excuses, honors, awards, activities, attitude, parent, background, and any other information pertaining to the student which may be desired. All of which substantiates what we should have known all along—those advisers certainly do know a lot about a person!

DEPARTMENT

"We all are blind until we see That in the human plan, Nothing is worth the making, That does not make the man."

"IN THE SIMPLE lines of Edwin Markham," said Miss Herr, "there is a fundamental truth about education. It is a challenge to those who direct the training of youth to build to that end; and to the members of the department of English it has become a creed."

With this viewpoint in mind, the members of the English department have provided for girls and boys in Durham High School a course of study that does not have the acquisition of organized knowledge as its only aim. It is rather a program of worth-while activities in which students normally participate, so guided that the language and literature used, will help them to do better tomorrow the same things they do today, and make life for them a rich and ennobling experience.

Composition, which the teachers regard as a tool subject, is taught with equal stress on having something to say, having a good reason for saying it, and having the technical equipment for saying it effectively. Environment, real or imaginary experiences of everyday life, reading, and travel are sources for developing individualistic expression.

Yes, grammar still holds an important place in the English curriculum throughout the six years of high school instruction; however, only what has been proved essential to correct self-expression is chosen. Essentials are presented in connection with the study of language errors; through such concrete teaching pupils learn to correct their own mistakes.

Literature as a basis for enjoyment, stimulation, and reflection on human life and character consists of the study of a few great books and a wise selection of contemporary literature in class, supplemented by parallel reading of books which pupils choose with a definite purpose.

OF ENGLISH

Because reading is so indispensable to success in the vocations of life, basic skills in each type are stressed. Since it is so well known that the intelligent use of the library is essential in modern life, courses in library instruction are offered by the librarian and the English teachers.

The department now offers two electives to those students who have talent for creative ability along journalistic and dramatic lines. That these courses have sold themselves well is seen in the demand for and results obtained from the work.

To stimulate growth in literary achievement that is desirable, English teachers conduct extracurricular activities in the English field. Every teacher in the whole department is adviser for one or more of these. In our own Durham High Miss Wyoline Hanson and R. E. Freeman are advisers for the Messenger staff; H. T. Gibson and Miss Herr for the Hi-Rocket staff; R. G. Walser for the Mummers' Dramatic Club; Miss Lelia Hampton for the Cornelia Spencer Literary Society and recitation contest; Miss Belle Hampton, the Southgate Literary Society, and Miss Herr, the Page Literary Society.

This versatility of the teachers may be due to their extensive academic training. Their record is as follows: Miss Herr: B.S., Columbia University; A.M., Columbia University; Graduate Work, University of Pennsylvania. Miss Hanson: A.B., Georgia State College for Women;

A.M., George Peabody College for Teachers: Graduate Work, Duke and Vanderbilt Universities. Mr. R. E. Freeman: A.B., Furman University; A.M., Duke University. Miss Lelia Hampton: A.B., W. C. U. N. Mr. Walser: Davidson College; A.B., A.M., University of North Carolina; Cambridge University (England); Duke University; School of Drama, University of North Carolina.

MERRITT

SOLLOWAY

Business-like procedure in every detail is the keynote of the Durham Commercial Department. Its superiority in every phase is a source of pride to each student of Durham High School. Every moment in the business classrooms is fully occupied as each forty-five minutes flies by. The steady pace seldom lags. Only occasionally is a class interrupted by an announcement from the Commercial Club Cabinet or by Miss Solloway, rushing in to tell of some new accomplishment made by one of her prize graduates.

There are eight instructors in the department, three of whom teach in the junior high schools of the city where elementary business principles are discussed in the General Business classes. This task of starting boys and girls on their business careers is the job of Miss Louise Berry of the Central Junior High School, Mrs. Louise Crowder Rightsell of East Durham, and Mrs. Margaret Noell Dailey of E. K. Powe.

Six classes in Shorthand and Typing are held daily here in Senior High with dictation, transcription, and speed tests, ten in Bookkeeping, one in Commercial Law, and two in Office Practice.

Miss Solloway, who has been the head of the department for a number of years is, without a doubt, the "backbone" of every enterprise undertaken near the commercial office. One can readily account for her capable management of everyone and everything with a glance at her training—teacher training work at the Philadelphia Business College, Johns Hopkins, Temple, Duke, and Harvard Universities, and the Universities of Pennsylvania and Southern California.

The special field of Miss Thompson, who received her B.A. from Converse and has taken commercial training at Bowling Green Business College, is instructing students in typewriting. She is in charge of advanced typewriting and serves the school as no other person could through the typing of the school paper, The Hi-Rocket, and the annual, The Messenger. Besides performing many such jobs which have helped Durham High to function more successfully, Miss Thompson, this year, was in charge of the typing of four thousand envelopes for the Red Cross Campaign—an outstanding community service.

Mrs. Merritt, a B.S. from Winthrop who has done graduate work at Columbia, is another one of our favorites. Because of her unusually amiable disposition and her personal interest in the students, we were in hopes of having her for a number of years. In January, however, when she became Mrs. Merritt, it was all we could do to keep her with us this last semester. Mrs. Merritt specializes in the teaching of Office Practice. In her classes, students are trained to do actual office work. Booklets, discussions, and typed reports are made on different phases of business, including filing, travel, and stenographic qualifications. The library is freely used to secure information on all aspects of business to which the student will be initiated upon graduation.

Mr. Grubbs and Mr. Scott, both graduates of Bowling Green Business College, are in the accountancy department. This year has meant the use and adoption of state textbooks and the building up of a new course of study. Durham High students will go out well prepared in the field of accountancy because of the conscientious work of these two men.

The culmination of every effort in the commercial classrooms comes in the spring with the state contests. For several years Durham High students have been entered—it is needless to say that they have won many honors. The members of the advanced shorthand classes have been so outstanding that they deserve special mention, for they have won in the contest four times in the last ten years.

Indeed, half of Durham High would be gone if we were to omit the Commercial Department!

MICHAELS
PHILLIPS

This foreign correspondent had just interviewed Miss Michaels; and though she may not have learned how to spell "I love, you love, he loves" in Latin, she did learn of the benefits received from studying a supposedly "dead" language. As conveyed to the students through competent instructors (Miss Michaels has to her credit an A.B. degree from Duke, an A.M. from Columbia, and graduate work at U. N. C., Duke, and Tennessee; Miss Hobgood has an A.B. from Duke; and Miss Phillips, also of the French department, received an A.B. from Salem and an A.M. from U.N.C.) Latin affords excellent mental training, forms a basis for the study of other languages, opens the door to the whole world of ancient customs and manners, and clarifies our own language; for fully two-thirds of the Latin vocabulary has entered English in one form or another.

In first year Latin, Roman life and customs, as well as grammar, are taught. The second year consists of the reading of Caesar's "Gallic Wars," while third year pupils are familiarized with Cicero's orations. Virgil's "Aeneid" undergoes "smooth" translation by the fourth, and last, year students. Latin may be "dead," but you won't find many in D. H. S. to testify that it has been buried—its "haunting" powers are terrific!

Now for a little "mon sewer-ing" and "bah jooring." Contrary to all evidence presented above, our two French teachers have succeeded in giving their students a reading knowledge of the language and the ability to converse in simple French. Mr. Humphries, who received A.B. and A.M. degrees from U. S. C. and graduate work at Duke, and Mr. Baucom, who has an A.B. degree from U. N. C. and a Diplome des Etudes Françaises, Université de Besançon, intersperse their class lectures with interesting accounts of France and its inhabitants. French students in first year classes learn the fundamentals of this language in phonetics, vocabularies, grammar rules, and simple composition. This work is continued in the second year with a more intense study of idioms and grammar correlating with the reading of classical French. The two novels read in this connection are "Sans Famille" and "L'Abbé Constantin." Mr. Humphries may insist, "Ughugh, well, the book's wrong," and Mr. Baucom may demand that we tell him the French for everything we drop on the floor; but we still appreciate the interest which they have shown in their struggling "élèves de français."

The entire student body may well be proud of the honors the Foreign Language has brought to the school. Lelia Lawrence, '38, won first place in the state Latin contest this year, Emily Tilley, E. J. Daniel, and Lelia Lawrence won second place. In addition to team honors, E. J. Daniel's and Emily Tilley's, '38, won third and fourth places respectively in the individual contests.

Of the three courses offered in the science department, only one is required; this may be either Biology, Chemistry, or Physics.

Many sophomores choose Biology. Maybe they do so because it is primarily a sophomore course, or because they need it for college entrance—or could it be possible that they just like to observe minute protozoa glide gracefully across a microscope slide? They have a change to make this observation when they study zoology during the first semester. The study begins with the lowest form of life, which is life in the one-cell stage, and proceeds step by step to the animals of higher specialization. Outstanding in the dissection department is the tense moment when the pupil bravely grasps a formaldehyde-preserved frog in one hand, a knife in the other, and proceeds mercilessly by carefully explained steps to mangle the little creature. Field trips to nearby streams and fields help to bring out the relations between zoology and life. During the spring a corresponding study is made of plants.

Chemistry is a more specialized course in science which deals with such topics as chemistry in the home, chemistry in industry, and chemistry in everyday life. The student chemists gather twice a week in the laboratory to concoct what the outside world terms poisonous gas (and worse). The fumes invariably drift out into the adjacent halls. When hydrogen sulphide is made, no loiterers can be found lingering in the halls.

Physics is also a more specialized course. It deals with such topics as mechanics, heat, electricity, light, sound, and radio. This course is offered for both boys and girls who intend to continue their education in related fields and to those who will enter the commercial field and who desire this practical knowledge which Physics offers.

As one dashes past one laboratory in an effort to escape the deadly fumes manufactured by the Chemistry class, he finds himself face to face with the darkened door of the other lab. at the end of the hall. On investigation it is found that movies are being shown today. Not, to be sure, the variety that feature the fascinating ladies and gentlemen of the cinema, but instructional sound films on units of works that have been completed in class instruction.

This year for the first time the University of North Carolina sponsored a state-wide Physics contest in which Durham was represented by seven students. Louis Warlick's paper won first place in the high school competition and an honorable mention in the state contest. He also won the Bausch and Lomb award for the student who has shown the most interest and progress in science for the past three years. Martha Dixon brought further distinction to the school by winning the Gorgas Memorial Contest. The teachers of science are: Mrs. E. S. Swindell, A.B. Duke University and Duke Summer School; Miss Dorothy Wilson, A.B. Duke University with graduate work; Mr. B. G. Stewart, A.B. and Ed.M., Duke University; Mr. J. E. Wadsworth, A.B. University of North Carolina; Mr. E. C. Hester, A.B. and M.A. Duke University; and Mr. J. D. Shields, A.B. University of North Carolina.

VITALIZING mathematics in the life of the student, laying a strong foundation, and preparing the pupil for problems later in life are the chief aims of this department. One often hears, however, the question asked, "Why am I taking this mess, and what good is it doing me, anyway?" Our math teachers consider answering these questions one of their duties.

A visitor would be quite amused upon entering Mr. de Bruyne's room to hear him saying, "Come on, fella! Eas—y!" Mr. de Bruyne is the head of this department, and he really makes Plane Geometry and Advanced Algebra a pleasure. The students take a great interest in their geometry notebooks which contain theorems and colorful illustrations. Although Trigonometry and Solid Geometry are not required, many students elect them for extra courses. The required math for college preparatory diploma is one year of Plane Geometry and two years of Algebra. A course in just one of these is required for a general or commercial diploma.

Miss Louise Watkins, who received her A.B. degree from Meredith College and also has graduate work at Duke and Columbia Universities to her credit, has been a popular member of the department for several years. Other capable teachers in the math department are Miss Virginia Hobgood, also of the Foreign Language Department, and Mr. J. L. Woodward, both of whom received their A.B. degrees at Duke University. Mrs. H. W. Richardson, Dean of Girls, also teaches in this department.

In the state math contest the students of Durham High have usually come through with flying colors and have upheld the standards of our school. Through them D. H. S. has ranked first three times and has received honorable mention nearly every year. This year our school was represented in the state contest with Samuel Holton's paper.

On the first Wednesday of each month one may see faculty members who are connected with the math department engrossed in an open forum at its departmental meeting. Here the teachers discuss problems and methods of teaching, and standards to be attained. They plan the course so thoroughly that the graduates are prepared to enter the math department of any college.

GHOLSON

WHICHARD

I was waiting in room 122 to complete a so-called interview with Mrs. Belle C. Gholson, head of the Social Science Department. As she talked with a student at her desk, I overheard this remark: "—but I don't consider dates important except as racks that we can hang our facts on—so we can take them down when we need them and hang them back until we need them again." This statement was a very familiar one to me, for I heard it many times as, in those unique classes of hers, we "just live" together, students and teacher.

I smiled inwardly as many other similar statements and ideas so characteristically expressed came to my mind, for "Ma," as she is affectionately known to all of us, really makes social science live for her pupils by the use of such unusual definitions and applications.

But I collected rambling thoughts as, after a jolly laugh and a final "all right, son," she dismissed the other pupils and asked what she could do for me.

No time was wasted after I explained my purpose—to gain some information pertaining to the Social Science department.

"Well," said she with a sly twinkle, "I think perhaps we ought to call these subjects 'Social Studies,' instead of 'Social Science,'—because we really don't know much." I heartily, though silently, agreed.

Continuing my questions, I gained knowledge of many details about this particular phase of our High School curricula that had hitherto been vague to me. The Department of "Social Studies" is comprised of courses in American History, Sociology, Economics, American Government, and Industrial Geography.

Those other teachers who comprise our Social Science department with Mrs. Gholson, who has an A.M. from Columbia with work at U. of Pennsylvania, are E. L. Phillips, who received his A.M. degree at Duke; W. G. Whichard, who has an A.B. and A.M. from

SOCIAL SCIENCE

U. N. C.; and C. R. Baucom, whom the department has borrowed from the Foreign Language department for one period each day.

A little later, in the course of our discussion, "Ma" said, "You know, the relationship of History and Geography is really that of Siamese twins. So we try to get our folks too, to link the two together, because, just as History tells 'Who' and 'What,' Geography tells 'Where,' and often 'Why.'" Therefore in her classes, by the use of current events, maps, and textbooks which merely serve as "anchors" we students are taught to live in the present, to be conscious of the past, and to get a vision of the future. By such standards we are inspired "to live more fully."

Unwilling to take more time than necessary, I asked the general aims of the department, finding them both practical and applicable.

They are: to teach significant facts in the field of History and other allied subjects; to vitalize, humanize, and rationalize the study of life's situations; to develop social efficiency among students and teachers; to establish a sane philosophy of life in our democracy and consequently train for better citizenship; to strengthen the ability of all students to think logically and systematically; to inspire interest, coöperation and harmonious relationships together with sane judgments among all D. H. S. students.

Sincerely grateful for all I had learned in that short time, I expressed my thanks and left with a wider understanding of what Social Science really means.

"Ooo-o-aww-ahh-aaa-eee, one, oooo—aw." Sudden quiet. "Fessor" must have stopped them. Well, the notes were getting a little sour. That's the "Fessor," though; he knows when those notes are being hit and when they're being slid under. The songbirds may wriggle, they may frown, they may complain, but the music is going to be sung right or not at all. That's why the Durham High chorus is where it is today. Mr. Twaddell has insisted on having a mature group of singers; and because of his untiring efforts, he has trained one hundred and sixty squeaks to be one hundred and sixty rounded notes. How many times a day he must jump up and down on his rostrum and brush his (receding) brow no one knows, but what we do know is that he gets the results. Somewhere between the jump and the brush he directs, and in such a manner as to make the taking of music worth one-half unit a year with the possibility of acquiring two whole units toward graduation. Besides being instructor at D. H. S., "Fessor" is the director of public school music and heads the Children's Choir School. He also manages choral affairs for the North Carolina state music contest.

THE BAND

director. And so it is. Both Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Jones have done wonders in keeping our band from sounding like an off-key series of "umphahs." (Not counting seventh period rehearsals.)

After the loss of Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Thad Jones of U. N. C. capably took over the job of conducting the band. For the past two years Mr. Jones has been student leader of the band and glee club at the University, thereby gaining much valuable experience.

Indicative of the rising status that music is taking in the schools is the fact that seventy-five percent of the colleges now accept credit for band work. We feel that as our chorus work is worthy of credit recognition so is our band. May all their notes be sweet ones!

DEPARTMENT OF INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION

Clang! Clang! Clang!

"Could those rhythmic beats be a rehearsal of the 'Anvil Chorus' next door?" an inquiring listener in 003 asked one morning last fall.

"It's the 'shop boys'," came the reply. "The department has added a new basement room so that more industrial courses can be offered this year."

Both Industrial Arts and vocational courses are offered by this department. The former provides opportunity for general experiences that are of value to all boys, while the latter provides specialized training for those entering or continuing their studies in mechanical and technical fields.

Courses taught include work in drafting, woodwork, carpentry, cabinet-making, machine shop, sheet metal, and forge. Hand work is stressed in industrial arts courses, and both hand work and machine work in vocational courses. Visits to shops and factories, studies of trade magazines and books, and also motion pictures are utilized in supplementing the work.

Included among the many projects constructed in various classes are tools, machine parts, duct work, sheet metal articles, forgings, ornamental ironwork, furniture, carpentry work, and architectural and machine drawings.

Three shops, one each for metal work, woodwork, and drafting, accommodate the classes. The teaching staff includes three instructors. Murray D. Thornburg is Director of the department. He received his B.S. degree at East Tennessee Teachers' College; graduate work at N. C. State College and Pennsylvania State College.

J. Howard Sandvig, instructor in woodshop, is a graduate of Stout Institute and received the B.S. degree from this college.

Harry L. Bowling, drafting instructor, is a graduate of N. C. State.

Both Mr. Bowling and Mr. Sandvig are teaching in D. H. S. for the first time this year.

THE LIBRARY

OH! ANOTHER library fine! By carelessness, another book had lain around too long without being read; and, though unwilling to part with another two cents, this worried reporter dragged herself through the double doors of the Durham High School Library. Glancing about the spacious, shelf-lined room, she began to wonder about the whole work of her school library.

First, "What is a library?" Slightly ashamed but undaunted, she approached the librarian, Miss Florine Lewter, who is always willing to answer questions. There's nothing about libraries that our librarian (A.B. Duke; graduate work Duke and Columbia; and A.B., Library Science, U. N. C.) doesn't know. (And do we give her the opportunity to expound her knowledge?) (Do we give her practice?)

"Our library," Miss Lewter answered, "is a collection of books covering a wide range of subjects and is organized for service. We have 4,124 volumes in our collections, fifty well-selected magazines, and four newspapers."

"And how does the Library Council come in?" your inquiring reporter then asked.

"The students on the Council are my assistants and help in circulation, preparation of books for shelves, checking mail, collecting fines and overdue books, and shelving the returned volumes.

"Our chief function is service; and from 8:25 until 4:00 we help around six hundred students to find references and magazine articles as well as to choose good reading material.

"A very helpful phase of the library service is that of Library Instruction. This course proves helpful to students, teachers, and library staff because the boys and girls become familiar enough with > the library to do reference work for themselves. During three years in high school each student receives twelve lessons," she concluded.

> I left that well-organized room realizing what a vital part of Durham High our library is.

DEPARTMENT OF ART

It's a long hard climb to the art room on the third floor, but those worthy of the endeavor never count the tedious steps; for there is something about this room that draws certain pupils as a load-stone's magnetic power.

At any time of the day groups of would-be artists may be seen at their work: soap carving, pen and ink drawing, clay tiles, murals, or any of a large number of absorbing activities included in the art curriculum. While there are only two courses offered in art, the advanced course particularly offers so many phases of art work that it really appears to be several courses.

The artist sees art in everything. His trained eye is constantly seeing possibilities for the beautification of his surroundings by a little application of his artistic knowledge. There are evidences of this all about our school. The cafeteria, the library, and even some classrooms are constantly changed—remade, as it were, by little touches of the artists.

Art is not only an essential factor in the education of talented and ambitious students who have chosen an artist's career, but is an indispensable part of the cultural background offered by Durham High School. For this reason many who have no particular talent for art join the class and add their cheerful splotches to the skillful painting of their more capable classmates. Occasionally a pupil of this group discovers his "hidden talent" and makes art his life work. Several people have brought honors to our school and city in the winning of state or national honor (as did Ralph Barker recently).

Mrs. Mason has been Art Director of Durham city schools for five years. Her work is what it is not only because of her excellent training at Columbia University, Maryland Institute, Duke University, and studies abroad, but also because of her genuine personal interest in every individual with whom she is associated.

The Home Economics Department is housed in four bright, attractive rooms of Central Junior High School. When your Messenger reporter entered the sewing room, she found girls busily working at the sewing machines. The remainder of the room was filled with large tables at which groups of prospective homemakers were cutting and basting.

When this wandering scribe visited the food laboratory, a pleasant picture greeted her eyes. Girls in starched green and yellow smocks were perched on stools copying recipes in notebooks that rested on cleanly-scrubbed white tables. Others cleaned vegetables in glistening sinks, while others watched aromatic concoctions bubble in shiny pans on the stove. Your itinerant snooper then chanced upon a completely furnished combination living and dining room where dinner was being served. At one end of the table the hostess for the occasion was graciously pouring hot chocolate, while another disguised as a maid circled the table as she served her classmates who constituted the guest list for the occasion. At the living room unit, groups of girls were reading and talking. The art of getting along with other people is being stressed this year.

It was at this time that Miss Woolworth told me of an interesting experiment that the department is carrying on this year: The class is divided into family groups of different means: one in which the income is small; another in which the income is average; and a third in which money is no concern. Family relations are stressed, and girls learn through experience how to meet every situation in any type of home.

Home Economics is one of the broadest subjects in the curricula, because it embraces all kinds of knowledge and training. It was encouraging to find that an advanced home economics student is as capable of running a home as she is of concocting fancy desserts and making ruffles. This ability as a homemaker is greatly enhanced by the aid which her two well-qualified instructors give her. Both Miss Woolworth and Mrs. La Prade have received M.A. and A.B. degrees respectively from Columbia University and from Queens College.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION

"Intra-mural!" This word now holds a new meaning for us. Last fall it meant some variation of Mr. Webster's definition: "intra-class games, within walls." But as various sports gained the limelight, it has come to signify a fine spirit of coöperation, clean sportsmanship, and excellent teamwork; all of which have helped our athletes to win the honors they now hold.

Last September we welcomed to our faculty Coach Sykes, a graduate from Wake Forest with a B.S. degree, who was far from being a stranger, for we were acquainted with his record at Junior High; that is, with his excellent coaching and his first six weeks "F's" in history. To begin with, his classes named themselves for prominent teams and battled almost daily for the football championship, which "Notre Dame" finally captured.

Newcomers during the basketball season declared D. H. S. a topsy-turvy place. So did we "academic veterans" for a while as lusty cheers from the gym furnished a startling and novel accompaniment for the usual rattle of dishes and the steady hum of school gossip floating over lunch tables. Nevertheless, we soon discovered that the boys were playing during lunch. Meals were hastily swallowed in a rush for standing room—and the spectators weren't all boys! The prophetic ability of many school sages was gratified when, in the final game played before Friday's assembly, "Duke" conquered "Minnesota."

Forbidden football,—possibly only by that important factor of public opinion (ah! history classes!)—the girls began volleyball. Under the supervision of Miss Brown, who received her B.S. degree from W. C. U. N. C., the unworthy namesakes of various institutions of knowledge played after school. Class games followed "intramural" with the resulting tie between Juniors and Sophomores which finally ended in victory for the Sophs.

The noon shouts often had a different tone—or was that imagination? Those were the days when the feminine "basketeers" sought the championship. It continued with customary squeals, although there was comparatively little hair-pulling over referees' decisions. The Juniors finally emerged triumphant.

Indeed "intra-murals" have become an important part of Durham High's athletic program.

DEPARTMENT OF COÖPERATIVES

THE COÖPERATIVE Class of Durham High illustrates the progressiveness of the educational program of the Durham City Schools in that this class was the first one of its kind in North Carolina and one of the first in the South. The City of Durham, by opening her industries to the Coöperative part-time boys of Durham High, made it possible for over five hundred young men to earn a living while continuing their high school studies. Many of these fellows learned trades which they are following for their life work. Thus the Coöperative Class and the City of Durham work hand in hand in giving opportunities to those ambitious self-help boys who wish to prepare themselves for advancement in their chosen vocations.

To be eligible for membership every boy must show that his interest is great enough to warrant the making of necessary sacrifices. Each Coöp feels the responsibility of following the tradition of this class in living up to its high standards. Since he arranges his schedule so that he is in school just such hours as his work permits, he only takes the subjects which he feels he can satisfactorily carry. Coöps average working about thirty-five hours a week. When you take into consideration this work coupled with the effort which is required for carrying three or four subjects in school, you have some idea of the determination and perseverance which characterize these young men. This industry does not go unrewarded, however, for those who have "gone through the mill," are now the respected holders of important positions in the business world.

Much credit for the success of this coöperative plan must go to its organizer, Miss Rogers, who received A.B. and A.M. degrees from Duke and continued her education with graduate work at the Universities of Pennsylvania, Chicago, and Harvard. It is her intense interest in this project which has been an inspiration to these Coöp boys.

Each year that Miss Maude has been in Durham High she has shown herself to be a real teacher, a true leader, and above all an interested companion.

The students who are working and receiving their education at the same time are availing themselves of an opportunity which does not come to many. Besides the advantage of gainful employment and experience, they are broadening their minds and faculties to cope with the increasing competition in an already highly competitive world.

THE SECRETARY

"Miss Hessee, see that this announcement gets in."

"When can I see Mr. Holton?"

"Please type these for me, Miss Hessee."

How many of us realize just what Dorothy Hessee has to do besides say "All right" to our many requests? She carries on the work which keeps this school from losing time, money, and patience.

However, our secretary has something more to do besides answer our daily quantity (no less than five hundred mouthfuls) of questions. When she is not serving Mr. Holton as his private secretary, Miss Hessee is (take a deep breath, here we go) keeping records, writing up reports, checking in money, making our schedules, and what have you. Her records include grades, references, and data concerning students who have quit school or entered college. Each year reports, which require more computation, must be drawn up for the superintendent, for the state, and for the Southern Association of Secondary Schools. Perhaps one of the most trying tasks is checking the money turned in for Hi-Rocket-Athletic tickets, musical programs, plays, and other performances which charge admission. Even summer brings no rest to deserving souls. It is then that schedules and schedule cards must be made out, and so here we go, losing no time in getting back to the office.

"Miss Hessee, whom did I get for English?"
"Let me see my card, Miss Hessee."
Ah! the patience of Job!

CAFETERIA

Sixty-nine in five, sixty-nine in five, sixty-nine in—you know that's a lot of people being served in five minutes. It's a lot of people; and yet it's only the beginning for there are some five hundred or more yet to come. Imagine having to feed between five hundred and five hundred and forty hungry wolves a day. It's too much for most of us who dislike even to think of cooking the family's dinner on cook's night off, so let's see how Mrs. White manages.

Since four cooks, eight girls, two cashiers, and a "soup slinger" do the actual cooking, serving, and collecting of money, she is left free to do all of the buying, menu planning, and settling of accounts. Let us consider buying for a moment. It's no five pounds of this and two pounds of that; instead, a hundred pounds of potatoes, sixty pounds of meat, and eight hundred sandwiches sounds more like our order from the D. H. S. cafeteria—and it's no wasteful extravagance.

ORDERS FROM HEADQUARTERS

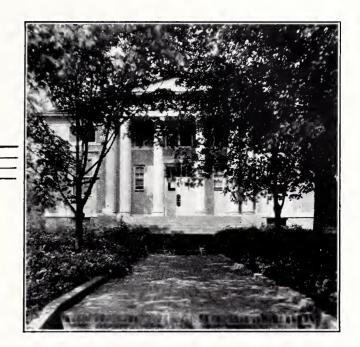

Dr. Alan Manchester

"The Messenger"
Durham High School
Durham, North Carolina
Gentlemen:

The Kiwanis Club since its inception has maintained a keen interest in all matters vital to the welfare of the city and county of Durham. It has placed particular emphasis, however, on boys and girls who lack privileges essential to the development of citizens sound in morals, mind, and body. With this objective in mind it has among other things furnished lunches to needy school children, supplied hospitalization and artificial limbs to the physically unfit, equipped a motor library for use by those to whom city libraries are inaccessible, and fitted an open air room for tubercular school children. At the moment it is concentrating on a Boys' Club. Through service the club hopes to build better citizens.

Cordially yours,

Alan K. Manchester, President, Durham Kiwanis Club.

PUBLIC LIBRARY

ALWAYS behind the visible signs of Durham's expansion and trade activity are the guiding hands of the business men who synchronize the wheels of industry into the machinery of modern day progress. Without their coördinating powers, the business of Durham would stop, wrecked by its own worthless inability.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

It seems as though we have been in High School forever, but that isn't because we haven't enjoyed our years, here. They have been grand and full to the brim with happy experiences which we shall never forget. Numerous have been the opportunities open to us in scholastic, artistic, and athletic fields, and we may proudly say that many from our class have shone in each division.

'Way back in '35 we started out as brilliant green Sophomores. That year seems rather dim to us now, but we do remember how scared and insignificant we felt at first. We gradually outgrew that wide-eyed, innocent look, and the next thing we knew we were Juniors. The most important date on our social calendar was the Junior-Senior social which we gave for the Seniors. As president of the class, Ruben Whitfield, was chief host. Roles were reversed this year, with us being royally treated at the Juniors' expense.

In spite of the fact that Seniors are supposed to be walking encyclopedias, this year we began to admit there were some things that just couldn't be found between our pages. However, Lelia Lawrence proved she had brains plus by winning the State Latin contest. We laid aside books and papers to go in for sports in a big way. Co-captains Kent Boutwell and George Spransy helped "rough it up" on the gridiron; and just to mention basketball makes us fairly burst with pride. The team didn't lose a single game, and Captain Ruben Whitfield and Fred Moore, Seniors, were certainly no hindrances to the perfect record. Jimmy Changaris, David Silver, and Albert Rose wrestled and boxed their way to fame.

The boys got a big kick out of the "femme" athletics, but the girls took their sports seriously and went out for everything from basketball to bike riding, with Doris Nachamson, as president of the G. A. A., leading them.

Ask Kinton, Brogden, "Rat" Harris, Cheek, or Holton about the "Hi-Rocket," and they will convince you that they were practically worked to death. Judging from the peculiar noises which issued from the "Hi-Rocket" room we'd say a little of everything went on. Seriously, these people helped put out splendid issues of the paper every two weeks of the year, a statement proven by the fact that the "Hi-Rocket" was awarded medalist rating by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Along with Spring and sleeping on classes came the beginning of real work on the "Messenger." E. J. Daniels, John Milner, Jane Chesson, Martha Dixon, Lelia Lawrence, and Lucie Lea Cavedo will testify that getting it out was no small job.

The class went dramatic this year as it put on the unusual "Death Takes A Holiday." Bill Seeman fluttered feminine hearts in the leading role of "Death."

May Day has always been a gala event of Spring, and this year's celebration was certainly no exception. We were proud as Punch of our comely queen, Elsie Broocks, who, with her maid of honor, Elizabeth Christian, and a bevy of fair Senior attendants including Emily Vaughn, Mildred Whitaker, Billie Dority, and Frances Inscoe, did much to brighten up the old Athletic Park.

As a parting gesture, and we're not boasting, we'd like to point out that with regard to the failure rating for the past three Senior classes, the class of '38 rates lowest. Yes, we've had a wonderful three years. True, it hasn't all been smooth sailing, but we've reached our port, and it's all over but the happy landing!

A NECESSITY to any community is the steadying influence of people whose common sense enables them to meet situations with level heads. Without a certain amount of conservatism, Durham could not have withstood the years with their quota of radical schemes.

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

At one time or another we are all Juniors in High School, experiencing that in-between feeling of importance and unimportance. We, the Juniors, take for granted that the Sophomores are to be "handled with kid gloves" and guided in such a way as always to be just "so-so" even though they are timid little creatures. Then, there are the Seniors who evermore practice their superiority over us. We, realizing that nothing can be done (yet) to even up the score, take things as they come and delight in saying, "Well, we at least have something to look forward to!"

We don't mind playing "follow the leader" with such people as Vernon Harward, president; Morrison Gurganus, vice-president; Lillian Boyd, secretary; and Stephen Harward, treasurer, at the head of the line. They can do such interesting things (those class meetings)! We give our thanks to Miss Brown Phillips and Mr. W. G. Whichard who have devoted much of their time to helping us keep on the "right track" in carrying out our plans.

When one mentions the Junior-Senior social, we have reason to grow "moody" in a happy way. This year we handled this affair in a slightly different manner: each home room elected a representative; then these nine representatives formed a committee, drew up the plans, and presented them to the Junior Class. With but a few alterations we were able to sponsor a most successful social.

Congratulations are now in order for some Juniors. First in line is Elizabeth Twaddell. Hurrah for her! She won five of the nine places in the State Art Contest sponsored by the Women's Art Clubs of North Carolina. The close of the girls' basketball season this year saw the Junior girls, led by Jean Booth (another congratulation), cop the championship, going through the season undefeated. We are also rightfully proud that two-thirds of the varsity was composed of Juniors (and still more congratulations).

We give many thanks to E. J. Daniel, Editor-in-chief, for making it possible for us to have individual pictures, an honor heretofore unenjoyed. Although it doubled our class dues, we felt the result well worth the added expense.

And now we have come to the settling of the score—watch out, Durham High! Here comes the class of '39!

JUNIOR-SENIOR SOCIAL

Textile workers are vital factors among the whirring machinery that turns out a diversification of finished products for which Durham is well known. The industrial co-operation and the spirit of work that prevails among these workers is an important link in the city's chain of industry.

LIGGETT & MYERS MANUFACTURING PLANT

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

THE GRIMLY serious academic year of 1937-38 has conferred upon the Sophomore class the rare distinction of being declared a "record-breaker." Early in the year Mr. Holton congratulated us on our liberal and enthusiastic response to the Athletic-Hi-Rocket campaign. In this campaign we Sophomores first proved our ability by breaking all records in the sale of tickets. This achievement and the subsequent attention and praise which we received from the faculty and upperclassmen, did much to restore our self-confidence which was badly shaken when we first entered Durham High. We had been a group of shy, bewildered creatures whose only common characteristics was a pronounced green hue. Outwardly, most of us tried desperately to give the impression of having everything under control, but it was obvious, even to the casual observer, that all were inwardly quaking. Many wandered helplessly about for days before they became accustomed to Durham High's maze of halls and stairways. However, with the help of sympathetic teachers and upperclassmen, who tried to make the orientation as pleasant as possible, we overcame, somewhat, the inferiority complex which had been such a handicap. Then we set out to mold our class into a well-knit organization. Bob Gantt, who had already proved himself a capable and popular leader in Junior High, was chosen president. John Poe was elected vice-president, and Rowena Mason was selected secretary-treasurer.

Feeling prepared, as a body, to cope with the new and fascinating school life before us, we turned our eager attention to the various activities which form such a vital part of that life. Here again we broke records of long standing by placing more members on the various athletic squads than had any previous Sophomore class and by swelling the ranks of dramatic and literary societies to capacity. We joined art and music classes and, after persevering effort, proved our ability in these fields. All these accomplishments, and the splendid spirit displayed by members of our class in backing, whole-heartedly, all school projects, has won for us an enviable reputation.

While we have taken a certain amount of pride in all our enterprises, we are also keenly aware of the added responsibility that such a record demands. May our class of '40 continue to be a breaker of records in every worthy endeavor! We have proved that we can. It's up to us—if we will.

Indispensable to any community are the city employees who see that our homes and businesses are protected from fire and crime. Only after they have completed intensive training courses do Durham's police and firemen enter upon their jobs—jobs which necessitate steady nerves and alert minds. These men are then on twenty-four hour duty, quick to answer our calls for help.

COÖPERATIVES

COÖPERATIVE CLASS

The Cooperative class has had a varied and interesting program during 1937-1938. Many outside activities, thirty or more industries, and about two hundred school courses have kept the boys moving at a rapid pace. Fewer failures, fewer absences, and better attitudes have been the aim of these boys who work, play, and attend school in such a way as to realize many of their most ambitious dreams.

A very active "follow-up" program is carried out by the Coöperative class. Every four years a homecoming dinner is given by the Coöp alumni. The first one took place in 1930 at the Washington Duke Hotel; the next in 1934 at Camp Sacarusa; and the last, on February 25, others came from nearby states and other cities of our own state. Messages were received from most of the eighteen states where Coöp alumni are at work. After dinner a most inspirational program was presented.

In 1937-1938 the Coöperative class again joined hands with its sister organization, the Commercial Club, in presenting the Coroso play. This year's production, Anne of Green Gables, was enthusiastically received. Freddie Cobb, Linwood Driver, Donald Ray, and James Strickland carried the roles for the Coöp boys.

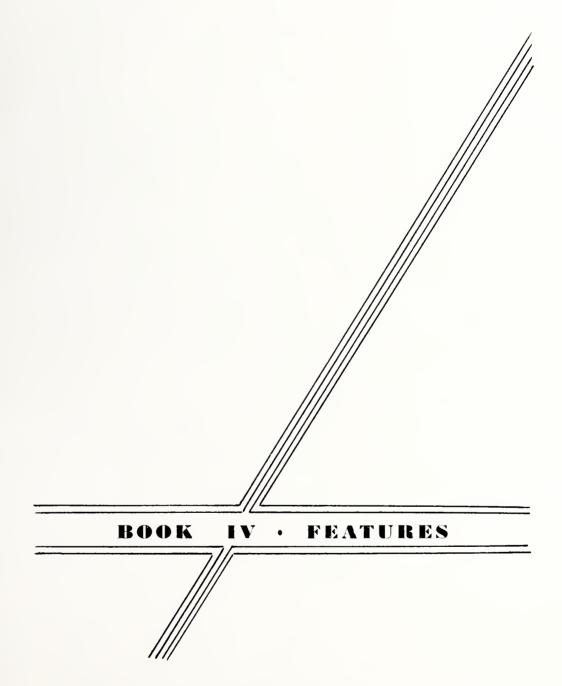

Another venture in dramatics by these Coöps of '38 was "A Girl to Order," a one-act play, full of rollicking humor.

Gentlemen:

The Altrusa International Club of Durham-Chapel Hill was organized in October 1934 with Dr. A. T. Smith, a graduate of Durham High, as its first president. Its membership is based on special classifications and is drawn from the business and professional women in the communities holding executive positions of a responsible character.

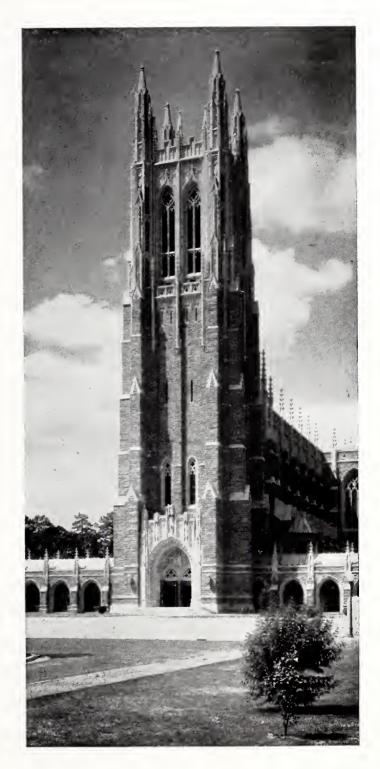

The ideals it fosters are patriotism, efficiency, and service which are reflected in the objectives.

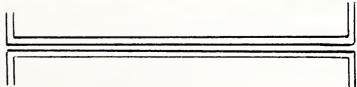

The aims are to foster fellowship among its members; to secure improved economic status of women; to maintain a high ethical standard in all business and professional relationships and to provide vocational guidance for women preparing for careers.

Besides this, every club pledges itself to support with its united strength all movements for civic progress. Since its organization, the club has sponsored an annual cleanup campaign, and the establishment of a public rest room, the Girl Scouts' Organization, and to date is a sustaining member of the Nursery School.

Cordially yours,

"DEATH TAKES A HOLIDAY"

SENIOR PLAY

In spite of the many protests of "too deep," "hard to understand," "not sufficient talent," Death Takes a Holiday was presented to two enthusiastic audiences on April 8, amid the thunder of approving applause.

Capably playing the difficult role of Death visiting the earth in the form of the mortal Prince Sirki, Bill Seeman proved himself a real actor. In his search for happiness he made love to Rhoda, a healthy young girl (Martha Dixon) and Alda, a restless sophisticate (Lucie Lea Cavedo), who portrayed their inability to understand anything not materialistic. Martin Crotts as an admirer of Alda ably put across his distrust and dislike of the Prince.

All this time Duke Lanbert (George Watkins) was living in constant fear of what this powerful guest who had demanded his hospitality would do next. The Duke skillfully conveyed the weight of his secret and his horror of what might happen if he divulged it. Emily Vaughan, as the Duke's devoted wife, was most convincing in her consternation over her husband.

The climax of the play was reached when the Duke revealed that not only was Sirki in reality Death, but that he was in love with the beautiful, unaffected Grazia, so capably portrayed by Jane Chesson.

Grazia's mother (Dorothy Hinson) and her lover (Jimmy Farley) won the sympathy of the audience with their well-handled roles of two bewildered mortals who could not understand Grazia's lack of fear of Death. One other besides the lovely girl, however, sensed that Death was nothing to fear. This was Major Whitread (Kent Boutwell), a member of the Foreign Legion who had nearly met Death many times before.

Jimmy Changaris, the plucky old Baron who felt that twenty years had dropped from his age, lent excellent comedy relief.

Frances Edwards, the maid, and Joe Kennedy, the butler, completed the well-chosen cast, which director R. G. Walser, with his efficient stage crew, presented so successfully.

MAY COURT

"Today we have gathered both large and small To witness a festival, the gayest of all Assembled together spread over the green To do honor to our loyal May Queen!"

WITH ALL due pomp and ceremony Elsie Broocks, elected from Durham High's bevy of beautiful girls, was crowned to reign as Queen of May. For the entertainment of the Queen and her court, the Festival of Old King Cole was given. The various Mother Goose Rhymes interpreted by approximately 1000 dancers were: Sing a Song of Sixpence; Ride a Cockhorse; Humpty Dumpty; Jack Be Nimble; Little Bo Peep; Little Miss Muffet; Old Woman Lived in a Shoe; See, Saw, Marjorie Daw; Jack and Jill; Little Boy Blue; Bobby Shafto; and Mistress Mary.

The festivities were sponsored by the Physical Education Departments with participants from each of the city schools. The most impressive feature of the program was the traditional May Pole dance with three hundred children winding simultaneously twelve May Poles.

Reigning with Queen Elsie were her Maid of Honor, Elizabeth Christian, and attendants Frances Inscoe '38, Mildred Whitaker '38, Emily Vaughan '38, Billie Dorrity '38, Betsy Berry '39, Kathleen H. Watkins '39, Lillian Boyd '39, Valinda Fleming '39, Becky Barbee '40, Henrietta Sawilosky '40, Marianne McCoy '40, Julia Hedrick '40. The heralds were Carolyn McClenny '40 and Dottie Liles '40, while Betsy Bryant '39 was the jester. Alfred Bryant was crown bearer; Gordon Stewart and Billy Christian, train bearers; Harriet Prevost, Mary Brinkley, Claudia Wright, Martha Erwin were flower girls.

"The Queen has reigned supreme on this day of May

And homeward now as we all wend our way
Both young and old thinking with greatest delight
Of Mother Goose folk that have gladdened our sight!"

THE COROSO PLAYERS

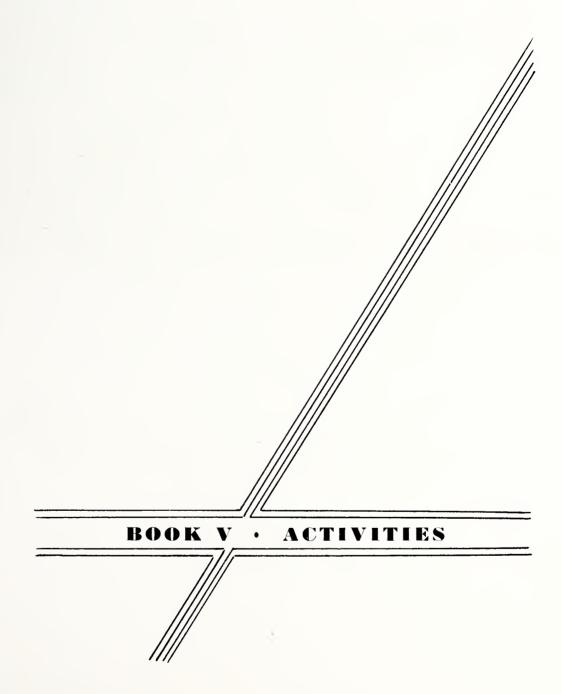

Do you know what Coroso means, or have you ever heard the word before? Of course, everyone knows that Coroso players come from the Coop class and the Commercial department. But few people know the name is Coroso because of that reason. The "Co" are the first two letters of Coop, the "ro" the first letters of Miss Maude Rogers' name, and the "so" comes from Miss Ethel Solloway's name.

Last fall after weeks of intensive training under the direction of Mr. Bailey Hobgood, the Coöp boys and Commercial girls presented "Anne of Green Gables," which was rated a "superb performance."

The Coroso play is always regarded as the biggest event on the Commercial and Coöp calendars of the year. In these performances the business and industrial aspirants show the school that they can do more things artistically than playing upon typewriters, adding machines, and cash registers, and drawing pretty symbols in shorthand and keeping neat, accurate balances in bookkeeping.

The study involved in the presentation of the Coroso play means as much in the actual training as a good course in dramatics. Playmaking to the Corosos therefore has become an art through hard work, serious study, and a cooperative spirit that always characterizes their productions.

Complying with your request for some information relative to the activities of the Durham Lions Club, I am delighted to give you the following:

The Durham Lions Club is particularly interested in helping the blind people of Durham and Durham County. We are also interested in Boy Scout work and sponsor Troup No. 17, which is one of the most outstanding units in local Scouting. I am attaching hereto a copy of "The White Cane" which is the official publication of the North Carolina Association For The Blind. You will please note the articles marked which will give you a complete report of our activities for the year 1936 and 1937. From this article you will observe that the Club is particularly concerned also in educating young people to take care of their eyes. Among other services rendered for relief, recreation, public education, etc., we furnished glasses for twenty-four school children. There is also an article on page three that will give you some idea of our permanent Home for the Workshop for the Blind. We will be glad to have you use any of this information you may see fit to use.

STUDENT COUNCIL

THE STUDENT COUNCIL is to Durham High School exactly what the name itself implies: It is an organization of representative students chosen from each of the twenty-eight home rooms whose policy is concerned with the welfare of the entire school. The meetings are held bi-monthly. Although it is a great undertaking, this student-governing body endeavors to fulfill the wishes of the student body whenever possible and practicable.

Because there are so many representatives attending these council meetings, several committees with their respective chairmen are appointed to decide in private meetings on important matters occurring between regular council assemblies. The various committees are: auditorium, school improvements, scholastic, buildings and grounds, games, traffic, and cafeteria. These committees of the council work together and strive for cooperation between the student body and themselves.

The question of giving dances in the gym after school was discussed and voted on during the first semester. The proceeds were to be used for school improvements and the athletic fund (which incidently appeared to be needed since the basketball boys made so many trips during their victorious season). But no definite decision was reached, and once again this plan has been left for another year.

At one time the proposal of a school store was presented, but when voted on in various home rooms, the motion did not carry. There was so much to be considered in the plan, such as where the store would be located, who should run it, and whether it would be profitable.

The proceeds from the 10 cent admission price, which each student paid to see the educational and recreational entertainment presented at school this year, served as a contribution to the student activity fund. Perhaps the most enjoyable of these programs were the Tom Thumb Circus and the American Indian Show which were engaged through the help of the auditorium committee.

The matter of attendance at the P. T. A. meetings was the cause of much concern in the council this past year. Special programs have been held, drives put on, and even the coveted prize—going first in lunch line for a week—given to the class having the most parents present at P. T. A. meetings. (One council member seriously suggested that "we try to have at least a few more parents than teachers present at P. T. A. meetings.") And this has helped tremendously.

Also this year the first and second Semester groups have put a great deal of emphasis on school spirit, inside and outside the school. The traffic committee has met stiff competition because of the additional number of students enrolled in Durham High this year. The games committee has worked for more spirited pep meetings, and during the football season, was well rewarded for its effort. This committee has also stressed the need of school spirit and sportsmanship during athletic campaigns.

During the first semester, Vernon Harward and Walter Shackleford, chosen as representatives from the student council, were sent to attend a meeting of the North Carolina Student Council Congress, held at Washington, North Carolina. At this meeting various methods of raising money and improving the individual schools were discussed.

Due to the splendid cooperation of the student body with the committees, and also the committees with their faculty advisers, the Student Council accomplished much this year.

THE MESSENGER staff heads had decided long before the school term began that, this year, everything would be carried out in such a systematic, prompt manner, that there could not possibly be that period of hair-tearing and frantic rushing about which has always preceded the publication of the yearbook. We all thought it would be a simple matter for the literary staff to complete the write-ups early in the fall and have the rest of the year to finish the planning of small details and to help the other divisions.

But—as the first six weeks slipped by, we realized that few clubs had even met, and in the second and third very little seemed to be accomplished. Of course, the articles were assigned, but, why not wait until later in the year to start the writing—until the literary societies would be having their banquets, and the projects of the organizations would be really under way? Then, many of the athletics took place in the spring and absolutely nothing could be done about that.

In short, with the year almost over, we discovered ourselves in a predicament worse than that experienced by any of the former publications on which we have worked. Those last write-ups, and that tantalizing last-minute rush will long be remembered as perhaps the sore spots in the highschool careers of many annual staff members.

The business managers had been unusually ambitious, having undertaken the task of allowing for individual Junior pictures, of adding many classroom scenes and of increasing the snapshot section. If it had not been for the New York trip to the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Convention which alleviated the tedium of their work and spurred them on at the same time, they would probably have been on the verge of "quitting" many times.

LELIA LAWIENCE LUCIE L. CAVEDO Co-Literary Editors

Mr. Freeman feels that he can hardly undertake another yearbook, and Miss Hanson is almost ready to announce a similar decision. We, on the staff think, however, that we'll be able to "bring them around"-we simply must, for where on earth could we ever find again for advisers two such really "swell" people!

There is still another side in the publication of the Messenger—a very bright side. The staff is deeply grateful for the fine cooperative spirit of interested friends who have helped in a big way to make this the very best book possible. To our advisers, Mr. Freeman and Miss Hanson we say, "Thank you again for putting up with our whims and dubious ideas." We are very much indebted to the faculty and students for numbers of favors and considerations they have given us. Several members of the Hi-Rocket staff, Katharine Kinton, editor-in-chief, Charles Cheek and Arthur Harris, sports editors, lent a helping hand on several occasions. The Photography Club also made a worthy contribution to our snap-shot sections.

Mayor Carr, along with the presidents of the various civic clubs of the city, responded enthusiastically to our calls for information in carrying out the theme.

Superintendent Warren very kindly lent his assistance in many ways, particularly in photography and in collecting data on the administration.

The "History of Durham" by Dr. Boyd, late professor of history in Duke University, was our most valuable source book of information regarding the past history of the city. We recommend this book, so interesting in style and subject matter, written by a truly great citizen of our community, as parallel reading for all D. H. S. students.

To Mrs. Spann and other members of the Durham Engraving Company, and Mrs. Siddell and her staff of photographers from Raleigh we must say, "Thanks for your tireless efforts to please us in all of our whimsical moods."

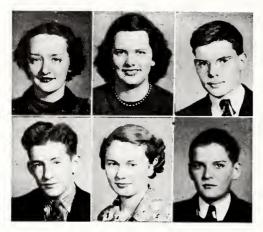

Martha Dixon Bill Seeman Co-Art Editors

The Seeman Printery has helped us wonderfully in every little way, particularly in smiling through every difficulty and in printing cheerfully our copy when (and if) we got the write-up down there. After all, it's great to have a yearbook!

Whenever anyone is seen busily running around the halls clutching various papers and galley proofs in his hand, students of Durham High say, "Him? Oh, he's on the Hi-Rocket staff! The paper comes out this week." And indeed the school paper does come out every two weeks despite all hindrances.

Always a winner in recent years, this year our high school paper has scored some more hits, winning medalist rating (highest possible) in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association contest at Columbia University for the third consecutive year, and again winning the Thomas Hume Cup award for being the best high school paper in the state. Last year the paper won complete possession of this cup for winning it three consecutive times. Those representing the paper at the Columbia Press Convention last March were: Mary Jane Edwards, literary staff; Charles Cheek, co-sports editor; John Carr, headline writer; Elizabeth Twaddell, news staff; Jack Hunter and Martha Worth, business staff; and Marion Norris, circulation staff. The majority of these delegates were juniors who went that they might learn how to improve next year's paper.

Since it was started in the fall of 1920, as a fourpage exchange sheet, the publication has developed into an eight-page, five-column newspaper, yearly growing in circulation and staff. This year the circulation has increased to 1100 copies per issue, with extra ones being sold each issue.

Some of the faithful staff members who earnestly work to get the paper "to press on time" are: Katharine Kinton, editor-in-chief; Judge Carr, business manager; George Watkins and Martha Davenport, news editors; Blackwell Brogden, literary editor; and Vernon Harward, junior assistant. Emily Tilley has been chief proofreader, an item which received high rating in New York as did the sports page which is edited by Arthur Harris and Charles Cheek.

Through the efforts of the staff members, aided much by the faculty advisers, and through the eighth period announcement, "All home room presidents go to the Hi-Rocket room for the Hi-Rockets," the paper comes out "on time" twice every month on Friday.

MEMBERS of the Hi-Rocket staff with other high school journalists of the state attended the North Carolina Scholastic Press Institute Convention which was held in Chapel Hill on Saturday, April 23. David Stick of the "Daily Tar Heel," assisted by Stuart Rabb, was in charge of the convention.

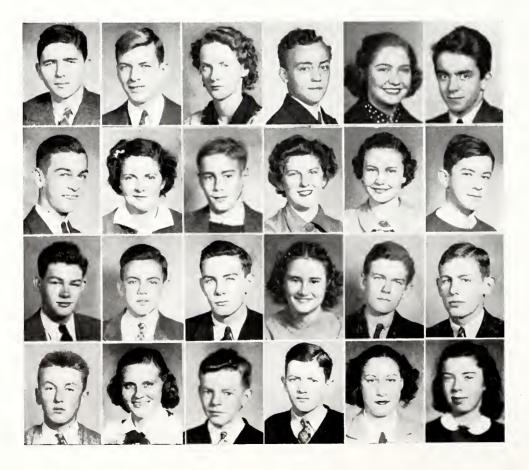

Speakers from newspapers in Raleigh, Winston-Salem, and Durham discussed various problems that confront high school publications. Topics discussed included: make-up, society page, sports page, news writing, and business.

Following the meeting, the embryo newspaper writers attended a banquet and dance given in their honor.

Blanna Browcr, Katharine Kinton, George Watkins, W. C. Whitley, Nancy Newsom, Ned Newsom, Judge Carr, Daphine Gibson, Martha Davenport, Ran Few, Miss Herr, and Mr. Gibson represented the D. H. S. journalists at the N. C. S. P.

The last big event of the school year was the Hi-Rocket-Messenger picnic at Camp Sacarusa, which relieved the tedium of the long final exams of the last week of school. Both staffs together with the entire faculty went back to nature for a gala evening of games, stunts, and delicious refreshments.

THE 1938 DEBATING SEASON

Query: Resolved that the several states should adopt a unicameral system of legislation.

For the first time in ten years Durham High's debating team won the right to a position in Chapel Hill to represent the school. This was a result of both the affirmative and the negative teams having been victorious in their triangular debate. The affirmative side of the question was upheld by Kathleen Watkins and Samuel Holton, with Holland Holton serving as alternate. The proponents of the negative were Betsy Bryant and George Watkins with the negative alternate, John Carr. As soon as the tryouts were held and these six were selected, Mrs. Gholson, our "fighting Irish" coach began to organize her teams.

In the Durham, Raleigh, Fayetteville triangle, the affirmative won a 2-1 decision over Raleigh while the negative received a unanimous decision over Fayetteville. Although both teams worked hard to get to the finals in Chapel Hill, they were eliminated in the first rounds. Under the able coaching of Mrs. Belle C. Gholson, the teams were able to do as well as they did. Our hats are off to you, "Ma"!

MIXED CHORUS

What would Durham High do without a few cheery students who could do a bit of singing? Our Music Department, since its organization, has offered a wonderful opportunity, through the Mixed Chorus, to the boys and girls who are interested in music. It has been the means of discovering outstanding talent, that otherwise would have been unnoticed.

As a result of fine training, a number of former Durham High students have reached great heights in the music world; so great in fact that we are glad to say they were once students of our school.

It is not so important that the mixed chorus has given recitals for various occasions, nor that many music contests have been won, but that the members have been taught to sing correctly. Durham fully appreciates the chorus, evidence of which is the recent organization by interested citizens of what is known as the Twaddell Student Loan Fund. It was a source of great satisfaction to us that Lucielle Browning, a former student of Durham High, who is now a member of the Metropolitan Opera, gave a recital in Durham to help accumulate money for the fund. Each year some trip is taken; and for many years the annual spring trip to the contest held in Greensboro has been an enjoyable event. We were most fortunate this year in being asked to represent our state at the annual Choral Association Convention in St. Louis, Missouri. However, after considering all angles, it seemed unwise to undertake

it. We derived some consolation, nevertheless, over the thoughts of participating in the same convention next year in another city.

One of the outstanding virtues of "Fessor," as he is so affectionately called, is his personal appeal to the students. This has made it possible for his pupils to attain the unusual success that is so obvious to the public.

For a while we thought that "Fessor" was going to leave us, but we still have him and we intend to do all that is possible to keep him. He has accomplished much in the past and present, and we are sure that the future will bring more success and happiness to him.

FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY of those boys and girls who can add rows of figures in bookkeeping, play on a typewriter, and produce a jumble of queer forms, called shorthand, were members of the Commercial Club. The club in its monthly meetings offered good entertainment for these students, kept them in touch with the entire department, and aroused their interest in their work.

The annual banquet was the highlight of the year. All Commercial students and interested alumni were invited to have a good time and to hear an outstanding guest speaker.

The name of this club brings to mind always the thought of the excellent programs for which at is so well known throughout the school.

Each of the twenty-five commercial classes elected one representative to the Commercial Club Cabinet, which was the governing body of the entire club. It also served as an agency to contact all the club members about important matters so that special meetings of the entire club were unnecessary.

The outstanding fall event of the club's calendar was the Coroso Play, jointly produced by this organization and the Coöp Class.

These monthly get-togethers, spiced with the best in entertainment, have made the students not only more interested in their club, but also more eager to continue their work after a period of relaxation and fun.

ATHENA LITERARY SOCIETY

Hodie Non Cras

Adviser: Miss Virginia Hobgood

"Resolved, That a brunette boy is more popular than a blonde." This query created "much ado about nothing" among the Athenian debaters at a meeting held early in the season, but it served its purpose to train in public speaking.

Other contests, including debates on more serious subjects, aroused interest among the students. In one instance each girl attempted to give the "tallest story" that she had ever heard, and the members voted on the best story. These ideas served to bring out each girl's personality, initiative, versatility, and talent.

Believing that "accomplishment is the first step to success," the members tried to develop their talents, poise, and public speaking ability by selfexpression at every opportunity, speaking either extemporaneously or on assigned topics.

Association with each other at socials and at the rather informal meetings was the means of forming many lasting friendships. No formal routine was carried out in the regular society meetings, and an ever-existing spirit of friendship was outstanding at all times. The welcome party at Duke Park for the new members and a party in the spring constituted the social activities.

As a reward for unusual and outstanding work for three years, the best qualified girl each year receives a gold letter certificate.

LILA MARKHAM BROGDEN LITERARY SOCIETY

"The Truth shall make you free."

Adviser: MISS LOUISE WATKINS

Bang! Bang! "The meeting will please come to order." With these familiar words Helen Thompson, newly-elected president of the Lila Markham Brogden Literary Society, looked over the speaker's stand at a disorderly group of girls; immediately every girl sat up, attentive, ears pricked, eager to hear the program. Such was the beginning of the twelfth year of the Brogden Society.

The program committee headed by Peggy Puryear, started the year right by planning programs not only to interest and entertain, but also to develop and train the talents of the members. Since every girl was given an opportunity to be on at least one program, many new talents were discovered. New members were not initiated until February when Doris Durham, vice-president for the second semester, planned a Valentine initiation party which was a mixture of fun and dignity. Games and contests appropriate for this season were played by the new members, while the old members had the advantage of watching and laughing at their blunders.

Each year Mrs. Brogden presents a medal to the most outstanding girl in the club's activities.

The society is always represented in the annual high school recitation contest. The girls are proud of Helen Thompson, who won second place last year.

BLACKWELL LITERARY SOCIETY

Faciendo Facere Discrimes

Adviser: E. L. PHILLIPS

WITH THREE members on the winning Aycock Debate Team, and another member in the finals of the Annual Declamation contest, the Blackwell Literary Society has again "kept up the good work" of the past thirty years; and it looks as if this high standard will be as noteworthy in the future.

But without the human side, life would be very dull; and so the society, besides its more serious activities, has this year entered on a program that provides the lighter side of life. Every meeting, the program contains a humorist, who draws from his audience a combination of guffaws and chuckles that cause the second floor to resound.

Besides this, the programs are enlivened by humorous debates, among which was "Resolved: That woman's place is in the home," and others.

At the end of the year, the society awards to one member from the group the title of "most valuable member." The name of the winner is engraved on a plaque exhibited in the office.

SOUTHGATE LITERARY SOCIETY

Adviser: Miss Belle Hampton

Believing that the motto—"Qui non proficit, deficit," i.e. "He who accomplishes nothing, fails"—is far more than ordinary words, the Southgate Literary Society girls constantly strive for proficiency in public speaking and a broader knowledge of current literary subjects.

This aim has produced a growing, ever-improving society that is worthy of the man for whom it was named almost a decade ago. In characterizing Mr. Southgate, the late Dr. Boyd of Duke University said: "James H. Southgate, a type of that class of young men who looked to the future rather than the past, a dreamer who had visions of a better social order, always independent in his political thought, ever lending his services to all good causes, and persistently interested in humanity."

The adviser of this club, Miss Belle Hampton, has been an important factor in its rapid progress. She has shown the girls the necessity of self-expression and poise both in school and outside. With these as the main objectives of the club, the program committees have planned entertaining, instructive programs that offer the members an opportunity to become poised, expressive speakers.

Close association with each other in the club was the means of forming lasting friendships among the society sisters. These girls of the Southgate Literary Society are not in it merely for a way to pass time, but for the benefit they receive from an alert society that is ever accomplishing something worthwhile.

CORNELIA SPENCER LITERARY SOCIETY

Adviser: Miss Lelia Hampton

Drip! Drip! Then a series of bangs! It was Fair and Warner. The dripping was Nancy Newsom's tears as they fell to the floor; the bangs, a "quiet summer day." But despite the tragic sounds, an entire audience of girls was convulsed in laughter as the Cornelia Spencer Literary Society presented a pantomime at the annual Brogden-Spencer meeting.

Other regular programs included plays, debates, talks, recitations, and musical solos. On one program there was Fur-a-Flyin'. Mary Jane Edwards directed a cast of club girls in a play of that name.

When exams were just around the corner, Margaret Mc-Cracken gave a useful and mirthful talk on "How to Approach Exams." The most outstanding remark in her talk was, "Study your subjects from day to day, as the year goes by, and don't cram the night before an exam." Sound advice, the girls agreed, but a difficult task.

This society employed a unique method for improving the social manners of the members. This method was The Question Box—an oral questionnaire with one girl asking the others certain questions. One question was, "If a boy took you to a dance, deserted you at the door, and left you to shift for yourself until time to leave, would you let him take you home, go home with another boy, or call a taxi?" Such questions make a girl feel more at ease in an embarrassing situation since she has thought out a solution before

The music went "round and round" when the club quartet, composed of Nancy Newsom, Nancy Carver, Mary Taylor, and Mary Moore Swindell, got in the right mood to sing the popular song of the day. Geraldine Vickers, also, frequently played the girls' favorite numbers of "swing," and what have you.

To collect the dues more quickly and more efficiently the treasurer appointed an assistant from each class, who collected the dues from the girls in her class.

As the May Day exercise was being given this year, Cornelia Spencer members could look with justifiable pride at the May Queen and the Maid of Honor, Elsie Broocks and Elizabeth Christian, respectively—both society members.

Desiring to do something for the school as a society, the girls decided to invite an outstanding speaker for a special program in the school auditorium. This year, Dr. Frank S. Hickman spoke on "Building Fences."

JULIAN S. CARR LITERARY SOCIETY

Adivser: W. G. WHICHARD

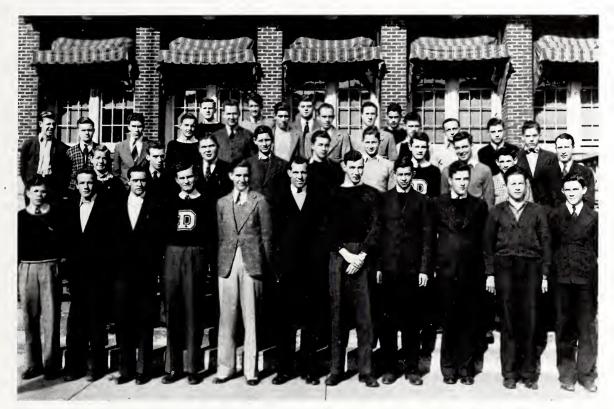

HAVE YOU EVER jumped into a fake swimming pool blindfolded, pushed peanuts across the floor with your nose, eaten raw oysters with macaroni and castor oil, or attempted to dress in the dark? If you have, you can understand the straining ordeals that the prospective members of the Julian S. Carr Literary Society went through before they could become full-fledged members. After their initiation these new members increased the total enrollment to fifty members.

The first thing that claimed the boys' attention was their constitution. To meet the needs of a growing society, they spent a great deal of time revising and amending it.

Their goal was to acquaint themselves with the art of parliamentary procedure and to become more experienced in standing before an audience and speaking their own thoughts. They have attained these goals by varied programs, consisting of debates, talks, and round table discussions on interesting news, the majority concerning athletics and world affairs.

Two outstanding debates given this year were: "Resolved, That the United States army should be increased," and "Resolved, That semester examinations in high school should be climinated." These questions not only aroused interest among the members, but served as a method of training the participants into more skillful public speakers.

CARMICHAEL LITERARY SOCIETY

Adviser: J. L. WOODWARD

Believing that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," the Carmichael Literary Society, itself a pleasant diversion from school work, divided its time between serious and light subjects. The semi-monthly meetings consisted of well-balanced programs made up of talks on current topics, declamations, serious and funny debates, and recitations.

When asking who the leaders in various organizations, either inside or outside the school, are, one will often find them to be a member of this outstanding and enthusiastic boys' society.

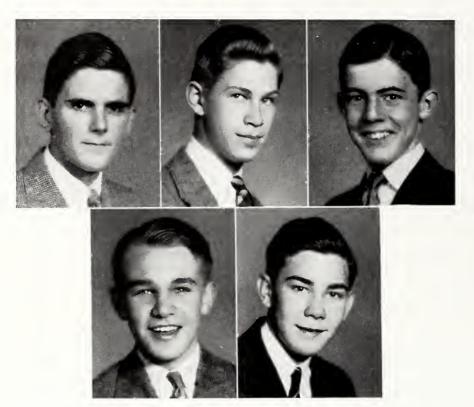

One of the most anticipated events in the club's calendar is the annual visit to some place of interest in Durham. Spring always finds Mr. Woodward and his club boys planning this long awaited trip. Last year they visited the Durham Dairy. This spring they made an inspection tour of a tobacco plant which proved to be a worth-while trip from the standpoint of interest and education.

The present-day organization originated from the Carr-Carmichael Society, whose rapid growth in members necessitated a division. The club memlers, with Mr. Woodward as adviser, have shown through their meritorious work that they have lived up to the examples set by Mr. Carmichael, who was a loyal citizen and a wise superintendent of the city school system.

Advisers: Miss Marguerite M. Herr, R. E. Freeman

"Romeo and Juliet Up-to-Date" is quite a possible version of Shakespeare's famous play, but one seldom sees it with an entire cast of boys. The Page Literary Society presented this play at its annual banquet this year. The cast was made up of David Hubbell, as Juliet, Ned Newsom, as Romco, and Jimmy Changaris, as Juliet's father. Albert Dunn directed this skit.

Dr. Clement Vollmer of the German department of Duke University was the guest speaker. The banquet program included toasts to the mothers, the school, and Walter Hines Page, for whom the society is named. The probationers of a year formally took the pledge and were admitted to the society.

The regular club programs were centered on those subjects that concerned or interested the members. Every boy was given an opportunity to be on several programs in order that each might achieve the polish and ease in public speaking and the knowledge of parliamentary procedure that Mr. Page possessed. Debates, reports, talks, and declamations took an important part on the programs. One outstanding talk was on "My Impressions of Katherine Hepburn" by Claude Adams who saw and talked to the famous actress during her visit in Durham.

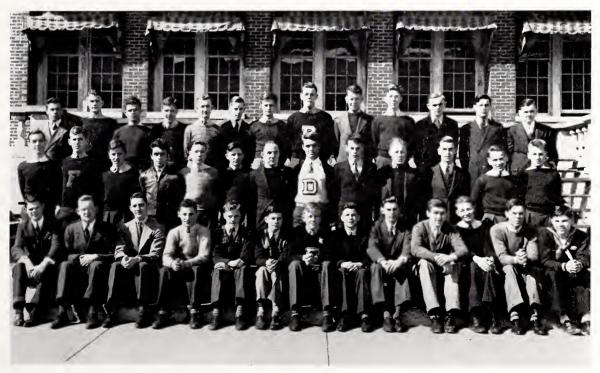

The reasons for the Page Society's obvious success have been the similar interests and ideas of the boys, their bond of friendship, and the work of two "couldn't be better" advisers, Miss Herr and Mr. Freeman.

Each year the name of the boy who has rendered the most outstanding service to the school and to the society is engraved on the Page cup.

O. HENRY LITERARY SOCIETY

"We go to seek on many roads."

Advisers: Mrs. E. S. Swindell, Miss Lucy Thompson

WITH AN INCREASE of two hundred per cent in members, the O. Henry Literary Society rose to the peak of its success this year. This large membership necessitated the division of the society into two parts with Mrs. Swindell and Miss Thompson advisers.

The main objective of the O. Henry is to create a democratic spirit in the minds of all the girls as they go to seek in many roads while living up to the club motto. The varied programs given during the year have required the initiative and cooperation of each member. This has helped wonderfully toward the attainment of their goal. One of the most interesting programs given during the year was the one honoring Mrs. Swindell. Each member proved her love and appreciation for what Mrs. Swindell and her work in the society had meant, by short talks, original poems, and a gift from the entire society.

The O. Henry girls celebrated this year an affair that they hope to make an annual occurrence—a Mother-Daughter banquet—the first of its kind ever to be held in Durham High.

The girls favored green for their society color and an owl for their symbol. A new constitution was also written and adopted by the members.

Each year Mrs. Swindell gives the J. D. Hamlin Medal, in honor of her father, to the senior who has been of greatest service to the society for a period of three years.

ART CLUB

Adviser: Mrs. J. B. Mason

Since the beginning of time art has had an important place in the surroundings of man. It has always been an intimate part of everyday life, and will continue as such through the years.

These considerations give us a keener appreciation of our fine Art Department and of Mrs. Mason, who is doing so much toward teaching us art appreciation as well as the actual work of carving, sketching, poster-making, sculpturing, and painting. The Art Club is just one part of the Department, in which the members may find enjoyment of expression without the routine of a daily class period. The club offers a means for the artistically talented students to develop their abilities, and it encourages the members to work toward creating beautiful surroundings for the school, the community, and the home.

Through the effort of Mrs. Mason and the art students, the art room has been made the most attractive one in school. The most significant objective of the year has been the decoration of more classrooms. Students realize that beautiful surroundings help to relieve the monotony of classroom work.

A full schedule with many interesting programs filled the year's calendar. Probably the most instructive programs were those during which Mrs. Lance spoke to us on "Carolina Crafts," and Miss Dunne talked to us on "The Art of Weaving." Most of the remaining programs were used to further our experience in the various features of art. "Art is the language whose speech begins, when all others become inadequate."

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB

Adviser: Mrs. Belle C. Gholson

Freedom of speech is an American right; in the South it is an institution. To be able to analyze a subject, to find facts on both sides of an issue, to organize facts thus found and, by thinking them through, arrive at a sane conclusion, is a goal ardently sought by the boys of the Current Events Club. Members of this "for boys only" club approximate their objectives by programs made up of round-table discussions of world, national, state, and community affairs. Frequently the boys engage in debates and other socialized pastimes which claim their interests. Such activities tend to develop their talents, formulate wholesome habits, worthy standards of living, and citizenship.

The "we" spirit prevails, and "social efficiency" has definite part in our philosophy of life. Mrs. Belle C. Gholson (better known to us all as good ole "Ma") is organizer and adviser of the club.

Club pins proudly worn by the members (and sometimes by the girl friends) symbolize loyalty to the C. E. C.

"Tis not in the individual—nor the Army as a whole,

But in the everlasting teamwork of every blooming soul."

PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB

Adviser: Ernest C. Hester

"HOLD it just a minute, please. Now smile, and watch the birdie." The camera clicked. It was just another one of the many cameras that were clicking around D. H. S. in the spring. And those words were often uttered by the youthful photographers.

The Photography Club, organized in the fall of this year, was headed by one of Durham High's best photographers, Walter Shackleford.

Working for new effects in their pictures, the members of the club experimented with candid cameras and time exposures. The study of developing and printing pictures was extensively taken up in the meetings. Additional information about various phases of the work and results of experiments were presented on the programs.

Mr. Hester, as faculty adviser, supervised the organization of the newest club in D. H. S. He was always prepared and willing to offer helpful suggestions to the amateur photographers.

The club members spent much of their time in the spring taking snapshots of school life for the Messenger and at the same time competing for the prize—a yearbook—for the best set of ten snapshots. Keen competition among the students resulted in a better type of pictures being turned in.

This method of serving other school organizations and at the same time gaining experience in photography is one of the qualities that makes the "Camera Club" a worth-while activity. Thus, the Photography Club promises to be one of the most outstanding organizations of Durham High.

LE CERCLE FRANÇAIS

Le Directeur: Monsieur W. J. Humphries

"Le Cercle Français est composé des élèves qui ont étudié le français pendant un semestre et ont pris le terme moyen d' 'A'," a répondu Monsieur W. J. Humphries, le conseiller, à la question de notre rapporteur curieux, "Qui sont les membres du cercle?"

Monsieur Humphries a continué sur le but du cercle, "Notre but est d'instruire les membres sur les gens, les coûtumes, le gouvernement, l'histoire, et la langue de France. Nos programmes sont projetés avec ce but."

Il a dit que les programmes présentés dans le cercle sont à peu près entièrement en français. Les membres chantent des chansons, jouent aux jeux, et racontent des histoires, la plupart en français. Une pièce très amusante en français fut présentée dans le premier semestre. Ainsi les étudiants apprennent à parler cette langue la plus couramment, et en même temps ils peuvent s'amuser.

Plusieurs membres du Cercle Français ont entré dans le "State French Contest." Le président, Monsieur E. J. Daniel, a gagné le troisième rang, et Mlle. Emily Tilley a gagné le quatrième. L'équipe française, composée de ces deux et aussi de Mlle. Lelia Lawrence, a gagné le deuxième rang dans cette contestation.

Vingt-cinq nouveaux membres se sont joints au cercle cet an. Ceux-ci étaient des cadets qui ont satisfait les conditions requises du cercle.

THE LIBRARY COUNCIL

Adviser: MISS FLORINE LEWTER

Weary teachers laid aside their stacks of exam papers on the last day of semester examinations in January for an hour of relaxation at the Library Council Tea. Away from those "blue books" that held the destiny of so many students, the teachers were given a chance to become acquainted with the new books the library had just received.

Books arranged in groups, according to subjects, were exhibited with class projects under whose classification they belonged. Miss Lewter, the librarian, assisted by Miss Wilson, Mrs. Swindell, and Mrs. Mason, served punch and cookies to the guests.

Those who are acquainted with the library work realize that giving teas is not all the work of the Council. It is a club organized for service and is composed of volunteers who give an average of one period daily to library work. The meetings, held twice each month, are devoted to the study of library instructions, reports on activities of other school libraries, discussions of ways to improve our library, and literary talks.

The students who spend a period daily behind the desk assist in circulation, shelving, desk work, management of overdues, appearance of the library room, and all the other work of a librarian.

Just as "the show must go on," so the library must go on in its service to an average of six hundred students daily; and certainly it would be almost impossible for the library to function smoothly without an efficient Council.

NATURE STUDY CLUB

Adviser: Miss Dorothy Wilson

"What is the value of current scientific developments upon our everyday living?" The various aspects of this question have provided abundant material for a full and varied program of club activities during the year.

Members of the Nature Study Club give instructive reports on recent scientific "discoveries." Outside speakers were procured for special "highlight" programs. Mr. R. B. Frisbee of Duke University gave an illustrated talk on the care and making of aquariums; and as a result, the members showed personal interest in this phase of study.

Profiting by other students' experiences was one of the main ways of learning in this work. For example, when aquariums were made by some, with advice from Miss Wilson, the other students received valuable information that might have helped them in solving their problems along this line.

Miss Wilson performed several mental telepathy experiments. This subject aroused keen interest because of its widespread wonders. Each member found out whether she possessed any unseen powers of the mind.

The joint meeting with the Phy-Chem club provided informing and interesting matter for study in the field of electricity. Professor Charles Edwards of the Physics Department of Duke University gave an exhibition on electricity; these real examples revealed more clearly to the student the problem and its results.

A missionary to India, Mrs. C. E. Parker, gave a talk on the customs of the people of India, and the development of science there.

"MIMICS" DRAMATIC CLUB

Adviser: Miss Brown Phillips

"O. K. Let's do that scene once again!" This is what one would probably hear if, in passing, he happened to look into the auditorium of Durham High School late after school. The scene, though seeming to be one of terrible disorder, really signifies hard and intensive work. Director, actors, and stage hands scamper back and forth attending to their manifold affairs.

Acting, however, is not the only high-spot stressed in the Mimics Dramatic Club. Make-up, lighting and scenery effect, advertising, and publicity are also emphasized.

The meetings of the club are held semi-monthly, one of which is held jointly with the co-dramatic club, the Mummers.

During the year several interesting comedies were given for the benefit of the school, part of the proceeds of which went to the club. Among the presentations were: "Hallowe'en Husband" starring Anne Dubs and Joseph Beaman; "On the Park Bench" starring Jimmy Crews and Lucie O'Brien.

"The Gypsy," featuring Doris Woods and David Hubbell, was entered in the State Playmakers Contest.

On the whole the Mimics Club can count this, its second year, very successful indeed.

"MUMMERS" DRAMATIC CLUB

Adviser: R. G. WALSER

"Curses, What a Night!"

There is really no need for excitement, for that is only the name of the melodrama with which the Mummers Club started off this year's productions. This play gave Durham High some idea of what its own students were capable of producing. The receipts from this program were used to start a dramatic library for the club.

In the fall new members from the club were seen going around the school wearing old-fashioned sun bonnets, asking teachers to autograph hard-boiled eggs, etc. These comical-looking boys and girls were merely enduring an annual observance—initiation.

At Christmas a beautiful pageant was given to the entire student body. It was most effective, being significant in all of its simplicity and stateliness.

The outstanding event of the spring was the presentation of "A Message from Khufu." This play was a tragedy produced under the direction of R. G. Walser, adviser and originator of the Mummers Club. This production won first place in the district contest at Raleigh; and in the State contest held later in Chapel Hill it placed second. In the same contest the "Mummers" also sponsored an original play, "Harvard vs. Jail," written by Doris Nachamson, a Mimic. This comedy was selected as one of two original plays by high school students to be given at the State Dramatic Festival held at Chapel Hill early in the spring. Certainly this state recognition was another proof that this 1937-38 dramatic group was one of the most outstanding in North Carolina.

Advisers: Miss Marguerite M. Herr Miss Virginia Horgood

In the fall of '37, the girls of Durham High School enlisted, as usual, in their annual drive for the Junior Needlework Guild. This organization is a part of the Durham Needlework Guild which is made up of interested Durham women. Its purpose is to collect money and clothing for the needy children of Durham. The D. H. S. division contributes money and garments for children under six years of age.

Nearly every girl in the school joined this worthy organization. The membership reached its highest peak this year, with a total of four hundred ninetyfive girls joining. By contributing two articles of clothing each, the girls turned in one thousand fourteen articles.

The boys are asked to contribute money for the shoe fund every year. They become known as "money members" when they give any amount. The three hundred seven money members gave twenty-nine dollars this fall toward purchasing shoes for children under six.

The organization was divided into groups of eleven, one director and ten members. The director was responsible for collecting and identifying two garments from each girl on her list. She also had to collect as much money as possible from the boys. This method of division provided for speedy and efficient gathering of the clothes as well as smooth functioning of a very large organization.

When the clothing had been gathered and reports made, the directors arranged an attractive display of all their collection in the cafeteria balcony. This gave the students in high school an opportunity to see the magnitude of the work of the Junior Guild. It also showed what an earnest, hardworking group of girls can do to help the less fortunate.

Later the collection was exhibited at the Washington Duke Hotel with that of the Senior Guild, which holds an annual display when the year's work has been finished.

The officers were: Jane Chesson, president; Ann Wannamaker, vice-president; Lucie Lea Cavedo, secretary; Martha Buchanan, treasurer. The Junior Guild is sponsored by Miss Marguerite M. Herr, who is assisted by Miss Virginia Hogbood of the high school faculty.

After all contributions were ready for distribution the Durham Needlework Guild entertained at a tea at the Hope Valley Country Club. The social hour was preceded by the reports of the year's work. The Junior Guild was represented at the tea by its advisers and directors.

PHY-CHEM CLUB

Adviser: B. G. STEWART

TWENTY YOUNG SCIENTISTS, eager to learn how to separate atoms et cetera, made up the membership of the Phy-Chem Club.

Under the direction of Mr. B. G. Stewart, faculty adviser, these enthusiastic Phy-Chemists worked very hard in their quest of the unknown. Experiments were conducted at the meetings and also results of individual experiments outside of meetings were presented on the programs.

One group of ardent "thirsters after knowledge" made an intensive study of the telescope and radio. The preparation and use of invisible ink, that so often baffles the detectives in our comic strips, was thoroughly investigated and discussed this year.

Outside speakers who are connected with or interested in science were invited as guest speakers to some of the meetings. Professor Edwards of Duke University showed the Phy-Chemists and their visitors, the Nature Study girls, how to play with the two hundred thousand volts of electricity from the Tesla coil, and how to break up atoms into six different parts.

The effect of color in motion pictures and glass etchings were some of the phenomona demonstrated by the group this year.

Because of his interesting contribution, the club voted to make Mr. Paul Derr, a practice teacher from Duke, an honorary member.

Whether the boys enter into science as their life's work, make it a hobby, or drop it, their experience in the Phy-Chem Club has been one that will make all scientific development of interest to them.

BOYS' MONOGRAM CLUB

Many of the boys who could run a mile in record time, hit a basket nearly every trial, or who had been outstanding in some other sport of Durham High were this year's members of the Monogram Club. These boys had received their letters and had been voted in by the former members, for these are the two requirements regulating the membership.

With a main objective of fostering all athletics in and about the school, the members coöperated with school and civic officials, throughout the year in sponsoring worth-while programs. The club assisted at all games during the entire year by taking up tickets, helping lead cheers, and sponsoring cheer rallies.

The Durham High School Monogram Club was represented at the North Carolina Monogram Association, which was founded this year. Jack Markham, a D. H. S. athlete and Monogram Club memler, was elected secretary of the Association and will serve in this state office this year.

In an effort to make Christmas a happier event for the less fortunate of Durham, the club boys gave several baskets at this season.

The club presented a special program in the auditorium at which time letters were awarded to the boys who had earned them. As a grand closing event for the year's activities, the athletes entertained at a dance in the late spring.

Representatives from all sports belonged to the organization this year. Fourteen football stars, six members of the basketball team, four baseball players, four wrestlers, ten trackmen, five boxers, five swimmers, two tennis players, and one golfer made up the roll of the club. Coach Paul Sykes was faculty adviser.

GIRLS' MONOGRAM CLUB

THE GIRLS' MONOGRAM CLUB was organized as a successor to the old North Carolina Girls' Athletic Association which is no longer in existence. This year, under the able leadership of Miss Olive Brown, a new constitution following closely that of the old G. A. A. was drawn up and adopted unanimously by the club.

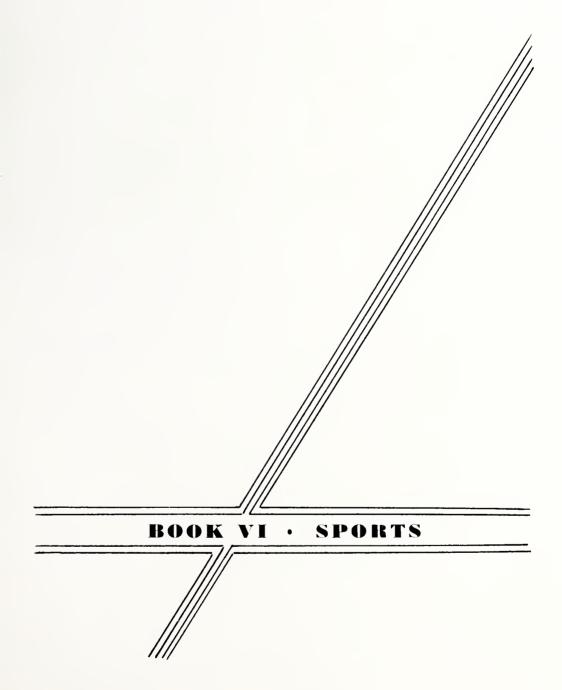

Because of the interest and cooperation of the girl athletes, the second year of function has been one of rapid progress.

The purposes of the club, as stated in the constitution, are: to sponsor and promote a program of athletics that will be interesting, stimulating, and suitable for the high school girls; to promote competition that stresses enjoyment of sports and the development of sportsmanship and character; to encourage leadership through student management.

Henri Etta Mosely, president of the group, was a great help in seeing that each member did her part towards realizing this goal. She was assisted in her duties by Doris Price as vice-president, and Mary Taylor as secretary-treasurer.

Membership to the club is open only to those who have earned enough points to win a school letter. Higher honors such as the state monograms and state pins which require four hundred and eight hundred points respectively, may be earned by attending practices, participating in intramural games, and being elected to the honorary varsity. There are seven members of the organization who have received their state letters for having earned four hundred points or more. These girls are Frances Alexander, Doris Nachamson, Doris Price, Marjorie Rose, Mary Taylor, Mary Frances Young, and Edith Welsh.

"The Messenger"
Durham High School
Durham, North Carolina
Gentlemen:

The Durham Monarch Club has sponsored for four years a series of debates in the county high schools, which has contributed to a considerable increase in interest on the part of the school people and the various communities affected.

The Durham Monarch Club sponsored this year for the first time a spelling contest for the nine junior high schools of the city and county, which were broadcast over the local radio station. These contests lasted over a period of ten weeks. Recognition will be given to the winning schools by the awarding of suitable trophies, and the ten best spellers will be given a trip to New York.

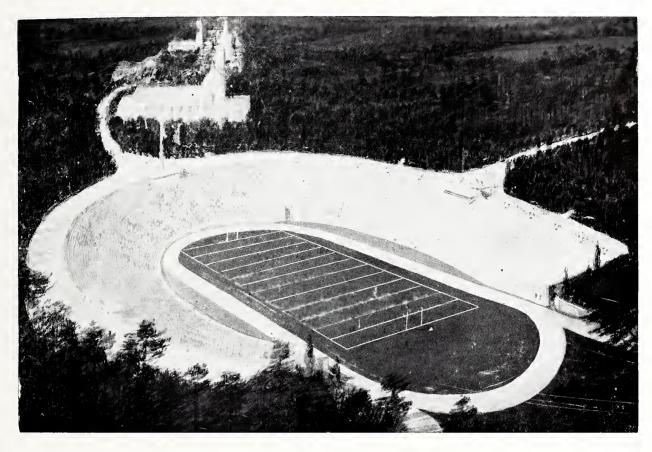

The Durham Monarch Club sponsors the Junior Monarch Club, a club consisting of about fifty underprivileged boys whose memberships are paid in the Y. M. C. A. by the members of the club. The members of the club act as advisers and the Y. M. C. A. provides the supervision of the club.

The Durham Monarch Club through its Objectives Committee coöperates with graduates of orphanages from Durham County in securing positions of employment for them after they are graduated from the various orphanages of the state.

The Durham Monarch Club contributes to all worthwhile activities of various social agencies of the city as a club and as individual members.

Sincerely yours,

MERRILL P. KNIGHT, President.

FOOTBALL

Coach Sykes and his assistants had the tremendous job this year of forming a football team around two lettermen, co-captains Kent Boutwell and George Spransy. The team, having lost nine regulars through graduation, was almost entirely composed of sophomores with very little actual game experience. However, there was a fairly good showing in the first game with Oxford which was taken to the tune of a 14-0 count at the Durham Athletic Park. The next Friday the season really got under way when the Greensboro gridders invaded the Bulldog's stamping ground all set to play off the 6-6 tie of last year. The locals stood the test by playing undoubtedly their best game of the year in taking the invaders 14-0. They staved off an air attack that might easily have proved fatal.

The Bulldogs journeyed to Wilmington where they were again victorious in a fast moving 20-0 contest. The following Friday a strong Wilson aggregation held the locals to a disappointing scoreless tie on the home field. So far this was the only mar on a perfect record for Coach Paul Sykes' team. However there was another disappointment in store the next Friday when at Rocky Mount, the Blackbirds coached by Emory Adkins, a former Durham High and Duke University athlete, scored on a reverse to take a heartbreaking 6-0 decision. It might be said that the Bulldogs outplayed the highly tooted Mounts and the game wasn't over until the final whistle, for they put all their spirit in it.

The next week, Durham had a breather in preparation for the annual Raleigh tussle when they easily trampled a light Fayetteville team 20-0. In this game Coach Sykes cleared the bench by using the scrubs as well as the varsity, a rare happening after the first two or three games. Durham High settled down for work on Friday, November 13, when they went to Riddick Field and engaged Raleigh High, who boasted one of the strongest teams in the state. The Bulldogs lost the game 6-0. With practically every member attending, the student body gave its whole-hearted support to the team which proved more than worthy of such backing. Strong and friendly rivalry was in evidence throughout the entire game.

This game with Raleigh brought to a close a most successful season for the Durham High football team.

BASKETBALL

Winning the Eastern and State championships and the South Atlantic tournament was the record set by the 1938 D. H. S. basketball team, coached by P. G. Sykes.

The locals were undefeated in the twenty-one high and prep school games, averaging 49 points as compared to 17 for their opponents. The Bulldog cagers defeated the Duke freshmen and the Wake Forest freshmen. This is the best record ever made by the Durham High School basketball team and will give the future teams a "goal" to shoot at.

The Bulldogs opened the Conference schedule by trouncing Goldsboro 61-13, following this victory with a 39-10 win over Rocky Mount. The scores of the remainder of the games were similar to the first two, the locals always winning with an impressive margin over their opponents. Captain Ruben Whitfield did an excellent job of leading the Durham team, especially in the South Atlantic tournament when his quick thinking pulled the locals out of trouble more than once.

Bob Gantt paced the Bulldogs' scoring attack with 181 points followed closely by "Bones" Mc-Kinney with 168. Cedric Loftis, and Fred Moore accounted for 132 and 131 points respectively, while Captain Ruben Whitfield contributed 115 tallies.

The following players received letters or stars for outstanding performance on the hardwood: Ruben Whitfield, '38; Bob Gantt, '40; Fred Moore, '38; Cedric Loftis, '39; Horace McKinney, '39; Charles Ferrell, '40; Elliott Puckett, '38; Garland Loftis, '40; and Arthur Harris, '38. All players who saw action in either the state or South Atlantic tournaments were awarded gold basketballs.

BASEBALL

Having only four lettermen to use as a nucleus, Coaches Paul Sykes and Nick Warren found plenty of trouble in forming a good baseball team from the twenty-two candidates that reported to him at first call.

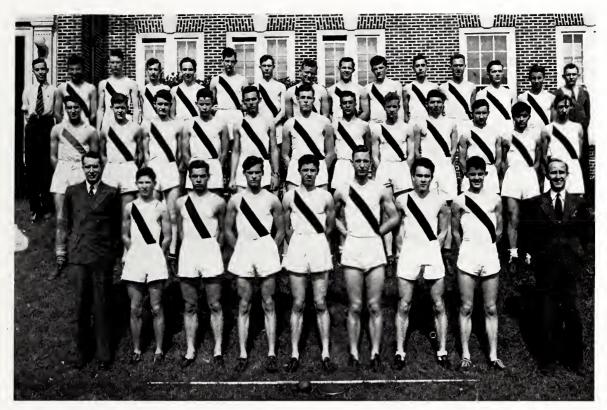

Pitchers Lefty Barton and Co-Captain Elliott Puckett had their diamond opponents well under control, except for the last three games which were lost. Joe Durham and Charlie Ferrell did the receiving for the locals, both giving some good exhibitions of catching, and also wielding a heavy bat at the plate. Other than Co-Captain Leroy Overman, the entire infield and outfield were formed of new material.

The Crimson and White diamond team's season was not the best ever had, but the locals gave a good account of themselves in all their encounters. They won six games and lost four, two each to Raleigh and Wilson.

TRACK

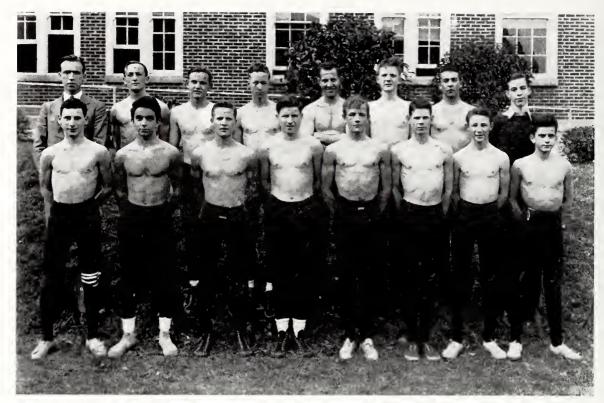

FLASHING style and form in all the meets, the '38 track team set one of the best records in the history of Durham High track.

Under the direction of coaches John Woodward and Cliff Baucom, and led by Captain Fred Erwin on the field, many promising athletes were developed. The majority of boys on this year's team were Juniors and Sophomores, who should make the 1939 season an even more successful season than the past one.

Two of our boys placed first in the state meet. Bob Gantt became state champion in the shot put and discus, breaking the record for the former with a distance of 48 feet, 4¾ inches. He also placed first in the Duke Invitational meet in the discus and broke the record by six feet. Garland Pendergraft took the other first in the pole vault to become state champion.

The 1938 edition of the Bulldog Track Team exhibited fine spirit and coöperation. Although having a long hard schedule, they came through with a good record by winning every dual meet, defeating Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Lynchburg, and winning the Quadrangular meet with Goldsboro, Sanford, and Chapel Hill. The team won honors in the Duke Invitational State and Civitan Meets. Coach Woodward said, "I can say for both myself and Mr. Baucom that it has been a pleasure to work with such a splendid group of boys, and we are looking forward to a more successful season next year."

First row: D. Silver, J. Changaris, W. Medlin, G. Munford, R. Hunnicutt, M. Crotts, C. Copley, T. Changaris. Second row: Coach Stewart, F. Hunnicutt, U. Umstead, W. Martin, G. Spransy, J. Conrad, H. Andrews, W. Johnson.

WRESTLING

After losing every dual meet, the Durham High wrestling team came back to take second place in the state meet at Chapel Hill which was held February 15. The team was handicapped all season by having to practice in the science room and also having to forfeit ten points in every meet due to a lack of men in the heavy weights.

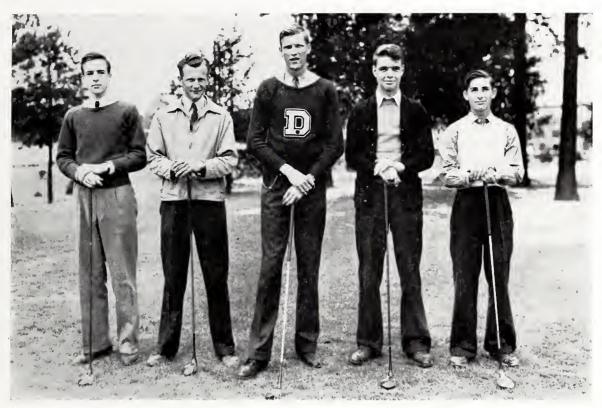

Pete Copley was crowned the State champion in the 108 pounds division, defeating every grappler that he met during the year. He was leading scorer of the team and high scorer in the State meet.

The team was captained by Jimmy Changaris and David Silver, both of whom were State champions in their respective weights last year. Other members of the team were: Takey Changaris, 98 lbs.; Martin Crotts, 108 lbs.; Reginald Hunnicutt, 125 lbs.; Watkins Martin, and Willis Medlin, 135 lbs.; Fab Hunnicutt and Urban Umstead, 145 lbs.; George Munford and Herbert Andrews, 155 lbs.; and George Spransy, 175 lbs.

Wade Johnson, manager of the team for the third consecutive year, had much to do with the success of the team. Schedule and scores of dual meets are:

GOLF

FOLLOWING the examples of the past Durham High golf teams, the 1938 golf team came through flying its true colors. Coached by Mr. Hester and captained by Judge Carr, the team was composed of the following members: Charles Alexander, Horace McKinney, Harrell Sugg, Herman Barus, and A. D. Turrentine.

The Bulldogs showed their strength to all opponents, losing only one match, that to High Point by a score of $11\frac{1}{2}$ to $7\frac{1}{2}$. Charles Alexander was low scorer for the year with Herman Barus gaining the highest number of points.

The scores of the matches were as follows:

Burlington o	Durham	ı 8
Greensboro 7½	Durham	$11\frac{1}{2}$
Oxford $7\frac{1}{2}$	Durham	$11\frac{1}{2}$

First row: H. Curtis, J. Markham, D. Silver, R. Few. Second row: F. Campbell, P. Corbin, D. Hubbell, T. Huckabee, G. Andrews, Mr. Whichard.

TENNIS

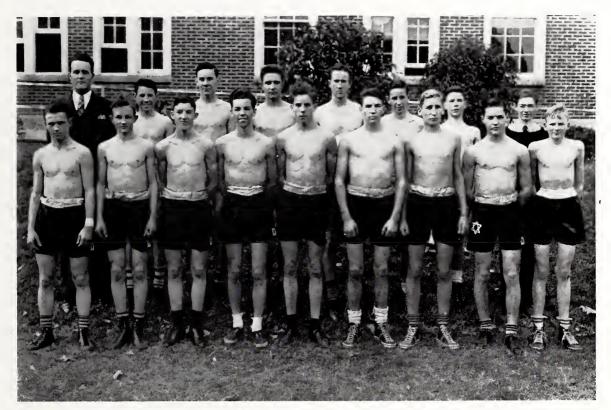

Although only two players from last year's crack team were back, Coach Whichard put a capable team on the courts this year. The lettermen, Jack Markham and David Silver, played an important part in every match this season. Markham entered the state singles tournament at Chapel Hill, and after playing well to reach the semi-finals, was defeated there by Moyer Hendrix, of Winston-Salem, who won the title. However, Jack has defeated Freeman of Rocky Mount, the other finalist. The doubles team, David Silver and Melvin Mayes, was defeated in the quarter-finals by Hendrix and his doubles partner, Haltwanger, who also copped the doubles crown.

Percy Ashby and David Silver were elected cocaptains of the team this year. Both have been outstanding players on the courts all season.

Guy Andrews, a sophomore, served as manager, arranging the schedule and matches.

The squad was composed of seniors, Percy Ashby, David Silver, Philip Corbin, and Melvin Mayes; Juniors, Jack Markam, Ran Few, and David Hubbell; and Sophomores, Tom Huckabee, Frank Campbell, and Hugh Curtis. Fred Moore, Norman Herndon, and Louis Featherstone also took part in dual meets.

Only Chapel Hill, by a score of 7-2, defeated Durham this year. However, Chapel Hill was defeated 5-4 in a return match. The team also defeated Burlington 9-0 and 9-1; Roxboro 8-1; Rocky Mount 9-0; and Raleigh 9-0 and 9-0.

First row: J. Dennis, E. Council, J. Sink, R. Knight, W. Norris, A. Moneyhan, D. E. Ward, A. Rose, B. Lougee. Second row: J. E. Wadsworth, coach; D. Branch, C. Nelson, W. C. Ayers, F. Bell, J. Lyon, J. Poe, T. Conway, manager.

BOXING

DURHAM HIGH'S 1937-38 boxing team, although pressed for space in which to hold daily workouts, ended a hard fought season with an impressive exhibition of pugilism, losing a close 5-4 decision to Raleigh, the state champions.

The Bulldog glove throwers were forced to work out either in the shower room, city hall, or dressing room, and as a result were handicapped from the beginning. Nevertheless, Coach Wadsworth trained his protégés well, and as a result, the locals defeated their first opponents, Burlington, $5\frac{1}{2}-2\frac{1}{2}$. The Durham sluggers lost the next four matches, all by close scores, but came back strong to win their next two engagements, trouncing Fayetteville and Hargrave.

Albert Rose, '38, captained the locals, and had the best percentage of wins and losses, defeating six opponents, while losing two and fighting one match to a draw. Albert Moneyhan also had a good percentage, winning six and losing three. The following boys received letters for their services on the team this year: Capt. Albert Rose, Albert Moneyhan, Edgar Council, D. E. Ward, Winifred Norris, Ralph Knight, John Sink, and John Dennis.

The schedule and the score of the bouts were:

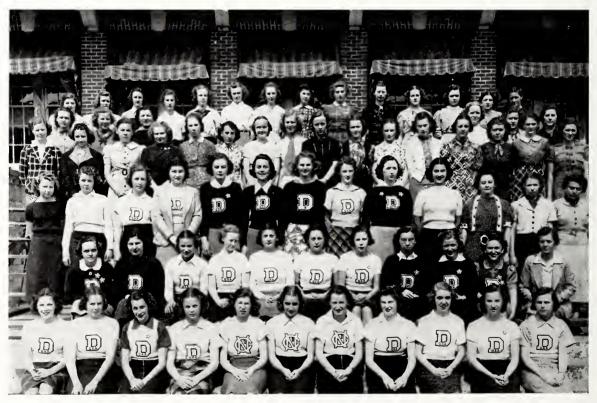

Durham $(5\frac{1}{2})$ here Burlington $(2\frac{1}{2})$

EACH YEAR the girls of D. H. S. have shown more interest and enthusiasm in athletics. This year approximately two hundred girls took part in sports including volleyball, basketball, life-saving, tennis, hiking, and bicycle riding, sponsored by Miss Olive Brown, girls' athletic director. Intramural games were the main feature of this year's program. These games played among the gym class teams enabled many girls who could not participate in sports after school to obtain recreation during activity and lunch periods.

VOLLEYBALL, the first sport of the year, saw fortyfive girls in the gym practicing in order to win the championship. The sophomores succeeded in outplaying their opponents in four of the five games played. Marjorie Rose was the student manager. Those chosen for the honorary varsity from the three classes for outstanding play were: Helen Higgins, '40; Mariella Hooker, '40, Margaret Hardee, '40; Mary Graves Chappell, '40; Rosa Morris, '40; Clyde Whitley, '39; Hilda Billings, '39; Frances Alexander, '38; Nancy Fleetwood, '38; and Henrietta Mosely, '38.

The close of the BASKETBALL season found the juniors, who won all the games played, champions over the other two class teams. About fifty girls took part in the games. Recognition was given to Catherine Perry, '40; Mariella Hooker, '40; Hilda Billings, '39; Jean Booth, '39; Mary Frances Young, '39; Clyde Whitley, '39; Lucille Speed, '39; Frances Neal, '39; Mary Taylor, '38; and Frances Alexander, '38 for the best playing in all the games. Frances Alexander managed the scheduling and playing of all the games.

This year Miss Brown gave special instructions in junior and senior life-saving. Six girls passed the junior test and ten girls passed the senior test. Those passing the junior test were Rose Marie HIKING was one of the enjoyable sports among the girls and was popular the year round. To conduct the hikes, there were special hiking leaders. It was required that there be a leader on each hike and the group hike at least three miles to receive credit. A point per mile was given toward the school letter. The hiking leaders were Frances Alexander, Marjorie Rose, Clyde Whitley, Mary F. Young, Martha Worth, and Zada Nicholson. Edith Welsh was the student manager.

BICYCLE RIDING was introduced into the girls' athletic program and became very popular. As in hiking, special leaders were chosen. A point for every two miles was given toward the school letter. The bicycling leaders were Marjorie Rose, Frances Alexander, Doris Nachamson, Dorothy Fogleman, Mary Taylor, and Mary F. Young. Anne Powell was student manager.

TENNIS was, without a doubt, the most popular sport among the girls, with about sixty girls entering the tournaments. There were three tournaments: the girls' singles, girls' doubles, and mixed doubles. The mixed doubles tournament was won by Mary F. Young and Ran Few, who defeated Bill Poe and Clyde Whitley in the finals. The tennis varsity was composed of the following girls: Peggy King, '39; Carmen Lloyd, '38; Hannah Bright, '39; Vada Nicholson, '39; Zada Nicholson, '39; Martha Worth, '39, and Mary F. Young, '39.

Under the leadership of such officers as Doris Nachamson, president; Mary Latta, vice-president; and Mary Frances Young, secretary-treasurer; and under the supervision of Miss Brown, the Girls' Athletic Association has closed its fourth year of activities.

Frances Alexander won this year's award to the girl most outstanding in leadership, scholarship, and athletic ability.

Gentlemen:

The Durham Rotary Club was organized in 1916 and is twenty-two years old. I am a charter member and attended the International Convention at Nice, France in June, 1937, where six thousand delegates assembled from all parts of the world. Rotary is in eighty-two different countries, has about one hundred ninety thousand members and over four thousand five hundred clubs.

The Durham Rotary Club sponsored the Durham County Building at the Jackson Training School for Boys. It built the Recreational Centre Building and one cabin at Camp Sacarusa; established a one thousand dollar loan fund to aid worthy high school boys to finish; sends a large number of underprivileged boys to camp each summer; provides a Christmas dinner and gifts for sixty underprivileged boys each Christmas; gave the High School Band uniforms for the boys at a cost of about eight hundred dollars.

Rotary's motto is "Service Before Self" or "He Profits Most Who Serves Best." It is Rotary's hope to put the Golden Rule into business and all human activities.

Sincerely yours,

R. L. LINDSEY, President.

DEEP PLOT UNCOVERED

Dastardly Diagram Discovered by Daring Detective

The slowly ticking clock edged on towards the witching hour of 12:00 while the gang gathered restlessly in the shadowed room. The leader, from her unquestioned place at the head, held up the carefully laid plans which were drawn out as only she could draw them, for she was a past master of situations like this. Her brain was brilliant and her followers listened eagerly while the tantalizing minutes dragged slowly on for your uninitiated scribe.

The plot thickened, for time was growing shorter and shorter. Suddenly a shrill ear-splitting sound shocked the shuddering souls into swift secession from the silent room, the bell at last had rung—Miss Watkins' algebra class had been dismissed.

TRUCK TEAM TAKES TRIP TO TARBORO

D. H. S.'s mighty truck team yesterday wiped Tarboro completely off the map when they won their annual meet by a score of 60 to 20. The only unexpected happening was when Gobbdy Pantt, small sophomore, actually won a place in the ping-pong ball throwing contest. With a mighty display of strength Pantt threw the pill a distance of 6 feet 1 1/4 inches for a new school record.

In the other events Weed Irwing won the 10 foot cross-country with a time of 5 minutes flat. Jaw-Urge What'tins won the high hurdles (or the low—we forgot to measure) and Wart Hittington was still in front at the 77 1/3 mile mark in the 50 mile dash.

In the field events, Hasslers Vendergraft and Soyles won first and second place respectively in the low jump. Vendergraft broke the school record by going under the bar at 3 inches, while Soyles was close behind with 3 ½. Northgate Bones received first place in the hole vault by digging a hole 6 feet deep in the sawdust pit, while Hershey Pashby jumped himself into a first place in the hop-skotch game.

They all laughed when I jumped into the ocean. They didn't know I was doing the "Deepsea Doodle."

DUMB DORA'S DIARY

MONDAY:

Was passing our semi-semi rivals' room this A. M. and noticed the lowly scribes crawling frantically hither and thither under the furniture. Did stop one of them by dint of much persuasion and learned they were searching for the joke book Miss Herr bought in an antique shop in New York. Wonder if the paper couldn't go to press until they found their "first edition" of Joe Miller's little black book? Tsk. Tsk.

TUESDAY:

Did meander down the way and beheld Mr. Holton all up in the air about a petition for the R. F. C. plan. When questioned, he did explain that it meant Relief from Classes, including lunch hour, dances anywhere at any time, class periods of twelve minutes each, of which at least five must be consumed by roll call; elimination of all written work such as tests, exams and homework; and no selling of tickets to anyone for anything. Myself went quite up in the air about it too until he did explain that he wouldn't consider passing it, whereupon I hied myself out in the hall to write a petition asking for the passing of the petition.

Did get to French Class late from counting Messenger payments and was astonished at how much I didn't know about the test Monsewer B. gave us. Je pensais que je knew quelquechose à Fran-

CIRCULATION MANAGER SPEAKS TO JR. ASSEMBLY

Willis Happer, pink-haired circulation manager of our arch rival, the Hi-Rocket. made an inspiring talk on "how to cut classes without getting sent to the office," to the rising senior class in last Friday's auditorium. As set forth by Mr. Happer this is simplicity in itself, the main requisite being that you work hard and get an important position on either the annual or paper staff. Then, by hook or crook, you procure tickets enabling you to meander along D. H. S.'s shaded hallways. In time teachers stop asking to see your permit and you are free to come and go at will. As examples of students who have worked this system out to a fine point Willis cited, besides himself, Katharine Kinton, Judge Carr, Jane Chesson, Charles Cheek, and John Milner, all of whom when interviewed by your reporter said, "Meet me in the hall next period, I haven't got time now."

(Ed. Note: As for the part in the headline about F. D. R., we put that in to arouse interest in the article.)

He looked around to see if all was ready. It was. He gazed into the strained tense faces, but none made a move to stop him. Suddenly he placed a short .38 revolver to his temple—after a few panting words he pulled the trigger—Bang!——and amid the cheers of the crowd, four athletes sped down the track.

sai I. C. Mayes je pense maintenant que je know rien a it. Pourquoi attempti a teach us Fransai anyway when nous ne parlons pas Anglaise tres bine?

THURSDAY:

Delightful day. Did not get caught leaving any classes or slipping in lunch line. Did not get run out of the Hi-Rocket room by Miss M. or sent out of the Library by Miss L., or sent to the office. Did not study. Did not work on the Messenger. Did not go to school—went to tennis match.

FRIDAY:

Oh, what a lurfely day Friday do be. It maketh a jouyous person of me. I do not have to look at the calendar to see—that tomorrow is wonderful Saturdee.

BOARD OKAYS NEW ANTI-TEACHER ACT

"Durham High School will have one teacher next year," W. F. Warren superintendent said yesterday. This startling fact was made in conjunction with the national anti-teacher drive. Mr. Warren said members of the Bored of Education had after careful consideration of the merits of the proposed plan decided to adopt it after seeing it from a financial viewpoint. Each room in school will be equipped with a radio and an apparatus for conveying questions back to the broadcast booth by the students. The one teacher selected shall preside over all the classes direct from the booth by means of radio and the classes will be so arranged as to allow each section a limited amount of "Eastern Standard."

Television will also be employed, if perfected by then so as John Faculty can still see if Johnnie Jones is shootin' spitballs.

All precaution against slip-ups is being taken and the board jubilantly anticipates a decisive up-swing in modern educo-educare.

A heated battle for the Pedagogue laurels is expected to be run off in a few days. All present members of the faculty are eligible and the lucky Prof. will be judged on the basis of: microphonical experience, vocal reign, mental standing, and physical ability. We prophesy a decisive slip in radio sales.

"UNCLE JOHN" ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR REFRESHMENT BOOTH

"Uncle John" Williams, heloved custodian of D. H. S., announced today the fact that students of Durham High would be fortunate in having a central feedin' station, to be situated in the office lobby, next year.

"In mah place of bizzness," "Uncle John" said, "ah is gonna sell chitlins, cider, 'lasses cakes, and rabbit tobbaky. All of the boys and gals hyah in school is invited to patronize my store. 'Quantity and not Quality' is our slogin, and the customer is always right—some of the time—Ah is workin' out a convient credit sistem for boys lak J. T. Craig, and we apprishate their bizzness near bout as much as we does the kash kousturmurs. Don't fergit about me."

Such a store is truly a god-send for Durham High. Now students during

"Uncle John" asks us to announce also that 10 able-bodied boys are needed for peddlin' his wares to the various home rooms and will be willing to try out any honest boy who wants a chance. All interested should see Mr. John Williams, Boiler Room, Durham High School.

is in the BOOK!

After Graduation your interests will become new and varied. Perhaps for the first time the problem of making a living and saving money will be of utmost importance.

Getting ahead or "success"... both are often judged by your bank book. Whether you open a thrift account with The Fidelity or with one of Durham's other fine banks, it will be a step in the right direction.

Should you select The Fidelity, you probably are carrying on a tradition founded by your parents or grand-parents. For more than a half-century The Fidelity has pressed forward with modern banking service. It will be a pleasure to add you to our growing, loyal family.
